

DUCE, ADMITTING DEFEATS, SAYS NAZIS TO TURN TIDE

Oppose German March or Fight, Turkish Chief Warns Bulgaria

Intensify Hate,
Mussolini Tells
His Followers

Declares U. S. Need Not Fear Italo-German
Axis Attacks.

By The United Press.
ROME, Feb. 23.—Admitting that Italy has suffered enormous blows in Africa, Premier Mussolini today told his Black Shirt followers that German mechanized detachments as well as Stuka dive-bombers have arrived in both Libya and Sicily to herald a "new season of success for us."
"Great Britain soon will be aware of this," Mussolini said in reference to the German aid, after he had called upon the Italian people to cease their grumbling and "intensify our hate" in order to achieve a final victory over Britain.
He told the Italian people frankly that it may take "a long time" to obtain victory, but that an Italo-German triumph was certain.
In a 44-minute exhortation to a Black Shirt rally in the Theater Adriano, Il Duce said that "our Tenth Army has been destroyed" in Libya and the Fifth Fascist Air Squadron wiped out, but "we will fight to the last drop of blood against England."

Mussolini said Italy's "destroyed 10th army in Libya numbered 10 divisions—about 170,000 men—including native Libyan warriors. Up to January 31, he said, a total of 410,855 officers and soldiers had been sent to Libya and organized into two armies, the fifth and 10th."
(The Italian army shattered in Libya has been estimated by the British at about 250,000 men, of which the British Army of the Nile is reported to have taken more than 125,000 as prisoners.)
Scouts Peace Talk.
He asserted that the United States need not fear any Italo-German attack any more than she has cause to arm against "an attack by the inhabitants of Mars" and, in reply to rumor and speculation abroad that Italy might soon be knocked out of the war, said:
"To speak of a separate peace for Italy is to speak idiotically."
"It is ridiculous to count on Italy's being more weakened. . . . Italy has 2,000,000 men under arms now, but before the end of the year, if necessary, we will have 4,000,000."

Mussolini, in his speech breaking a long silence, asserted that:
1—"Italy" "would have preferred that this war had been delayed for the purpose of building up our materials, but history takes one by the throat and forces a decision. . . . If we had been prepared we would have entered the war in September of 1939 instead of June of 1940."
2—"Italy has had 'an adverse period' on the battle fronts, particularly in eastern Libya, but 'our capacity to recuperate is a formidable characteristic of the Italian people.'"

Renews Pledge To Aid Britain Against Reich

Eden and Dill Expected in Ankara Tomorrow
for Conference.

ISTANBUL, Feb. 23.—(UP) A warning that Turkey might be forced to go to war against Bulgaria if the German army is permitted to use Bulgarian territory as a base for aggression was seen in informed quarters tonight in a statement by Foreign Minister Saracoglu.

Saracoglu said Turkey is prepared to back up her alliance with Great Britain and "cannot in any way remain indifferent to foreign activities which might occur in her zone of security."

(Turkey has considered a neutral Bulgaria as part of her security zone.)
Saracoglu, whose statement appeared in the semi-official press, did not state what limits Turkey places on her "zone of security," but said the Turks will "defend ourselves if attacked."

Turkish political quarters said they considered Saracoglu's statement, and his implied warning to both Bulgaria and Germany, as meaning that Turkey reserves even the right to declare war should Hitler use Bulgaria as a military base.

Compelled to Fight.
"Turkey will oppose by arms any aggression directed against her territorial integrity or her independence," Saracoglu said.
By his phrase "or her independence," it was pointed out in some quarters, the Turkish foreign minister appeared to be stating that Turkey might feel compelled to fight not only in the event of an attack upon her frontiers but in event of a serious threat to her independence.

It was understood that British Foreign Secretary Eden, now in Egypt, will arrive in Ankara by special plane Tuesday for consultations on the Anglo-Turkish mutual aid pact in view of the urgency brought about by Hitler's deeper thrust into the Balkans.

The reported early arrival of Eden, who may be accompanied by General Sir John G. Dill, chief of the British imperial staff, emphasized reports that Britain was attempting an eleventh-hour creation of a Balkan defense alliance among Turkey, Greece and Yugoslavia in an effort to halt the Nazi march.
Saracoglu's statement, made as Turkey maintained large military forces along the frontier facing

Nazis Swarm Over England In Mass Raids

British Fighting Planes and Guns Turn Back
Many Attackers.

By The Associated Press.
LONDON, Feb. 23.—Strong forces of German fighters and bombers such as opened the aerial offensive against Britain last summer swarmed over the Dover strait today.
They were met by squadrons of British Spitfires and anti-aircraft fire and most raiders turned back before reaching the coast, but some penetrated inland.

The Press Association, a British news agency, said the appearance of the German planes "heralded the opening of the enemy's spring air offensive."

It was the second successive day of mass display of aerial might, but Lord Beaverbrook, minister of aircraft production, told Canadians in a transatlantic broadcast that Nazi warplanes have lost their terror.

Factory damage has been repaired, the minister declared, and "now it may be said that industrial plants are no longer in the same danger."
Spitfire patrols were active over the strait throughout the morning and British bombers also were seen flying out to sea.

Missing in Warplane in Canada.

MONTREAL, Feb. 23.—(P)—Dr. Sir Frederick Banting, Nobel prize winner for his share in the discovery of insulin, was missing tonight with three other persons in a military airplane being delivered by a civilian organization.
An announcement said the plane disappeared Friday morning while flying in favorable weather conditions.

It was feared the plane might have come down in the sea off the east coast or on land remote from means of communication.

Just where the plane had taken off or where it was going was not announced but the official announcement indicated that if it came down on land it might have been in some remote section of the

The weatherman is still determined to get us that snow.

Official forecast for Atlanta and vicinity, released by George W. Mindling, head of the weather bureau here, declared: "Partly cloudy and continued cold today with rain or snow beginning tonight."

Bullet Wounds Are Fatal to 2 Atlanta Youths

Jack William Sutter and
Jack B. Ivey Succumb
Here.

Gunshot wounds resulted in the death of two Atlanta youths yesterday.

Jack William Sutter, 13, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Sutter, of 419 Montgomery Ferry drive, N. E., died last night in a private hospital as the result of a bullet wound sustained yesterday afternoon when the gun discharged while he was cleaning it. The youth, a Marxist student, had been in the woods at target practice, friends of the family reported.

Jack B. Ivey, 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Ivey, of 137 Holliday avenue, N. E., was found by his parents on the corner of Holliday and Seaboard avenue, with a bullet wound in his chest, and a revolver lying beside him. His father, cashier of a local fire insurance company, revealed the youth previously had threatened to end his life, police reported. The father identified the revolver as belonging to him.

The bodies of both youths were removed to the chapel of H. M. Patterson & Son pending inquests.

Vichy and Thai Gird to Resume Indo-China War

Truce Near End, Tokyo
Striving To Preserve
Far East Peace.

SHANGHAI, Monday, Feb. 24. (UP)—The Japan-sponsored armistice between Thailand and French Indo-China will expire tomorrow and both sides were reported preparing for a resumption of hostilities which some diplomats feared may bring the war to the Far East and involve the United States in open conflict with Japan.

Fervent efforts reportedly were being made in Tokyo to reach an agreement, but advances today indicated France was standing fast in her rejection of a Japanese peace formula that would award Thailand considerable areas of western Indo-China, in the Laos territory and the French Cambodian protectorate.

Japanese accused Britain and the United States of "sabotaging" the Tokyo peace conference.

Italy May Return Ceded Land To France for Tunisian Haven

VICHY, Feb. 23.—(UP)—France may regain her Riviera and Alpine territories, which have been occupied by Italy since the armistice, by allowing nearly 80,000 Italian civilian colonists to flee into French Tunisia from the British conquest of Libya, it was stated reliably tonight.

Negotiations were said to be under way for such a mass evacuation in event Britain's army of the Nile continues its westward sweep to Tripoli to make complete the invasion of Italy's richest African colony.

The negotiations, which may lead to return of the French territory, cover a number of points of which asylum to the Italian colonial refugees is one, informants said.

The evacuation plan, in which Generalissimo Franco, of Spain, is acting as an intermediary, was said to be a direct outgrowth of Franco's recent conference with Mussolini at Bordighera on the Italian Riviera and his talk the next day with Marshal Petain at Montpellier.

If the trade can be negotiated France may regain the territories which she surrendered to Italy under the terms of last June's armistice, including Mentone on the Riviera and the upper Maurienne valley high in the Alps.

Originally, it was understood in Vichy, tonight, Mussolini sought to arrange an outlet from Libya not only for his colonists but up to 125,000 Italian troops, moving

Sudanese Use Flaming Arrows To Fire Italian Base in Ethiopia

Native Archers' Incendiary
Shafts Start Blazes
in Grass Huts.

KHARTOUM, Anglo-Egyptian Sudan, Feb. 23.—(UP)—An attack by crack Sudanese archers using "incendiary arrows" was reported today to have set ablaze the Italian military base of Asosa along the blue Nile in western Ethiopia.

Billowing smoke rising above the town was said to be visible for 30 miles after the night-time attack by the Sudanese native bowmen, who are attached to Britain's forces driving deeper into Ethiopia with the aid of RAF planes, units of "Free French" forces and Ethiopian rebels.

Asosa, fortified by the Italians last autumn as a base from which the Fascists evidently hoped to invade the southern Sudan up the valley of the blue Nile, held a full division as its garrison.

Today, according to military advice, the base was being attacked from both the north and south in a pincers operation.

The British East African forces, including Belgian Congo troops, were said to be tightening the encirclement of the burning town after seizing Afodu to the north and Siricoll to the south.

The incendiary arrows of the Sudanese native troops were reported to have been highly effective against the grass huts housing Italian troops in Asosa.

The picked bowmen, creeping up under cover of darkness, surrounded the encampment and began shooting their firespreading arrows which have a bar across the shaft, causing them to remain imbedded in walls and roofs of the grass huts.

English Flying Service To U. S. Will Resume

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.—(P)—British flying boat service between the United States and England will be resumed about May 1. Paul Bewshea, representing Airways Atlantic, Ltd., said that operations would be "irregular"—as during 1940—and that the big air boats would carry occasional passengers, but principally mail.

During winter months the only passenger air route from the United States to Europe has been via Pan American Clippers, which have Lisbon, Portugal, as their terminal.

Growing Curious.

A reporter, growing curious and seeking a reason for so many questions about the cabinet, asked one father:

"What's the matter, mister, have the kids got a school assignment?"
"Yep," was the reply, "it's kinda tough not to be able to answer your kid's questions. Sorry to bother you fellows, but I can't let my kid think his old man isn't up on his history."
Further questioning revealed

Veteran Is Ready To Fight for WPA

CARROLLTON, Ga., Feb. 23.—Kim Wright, 46-year-old veteran of the World War, came in to register along with hundreds of other Carroll county ex-service men yesterday, and wanted back his old job as a gun-wiper, reported Douglas Merrell, in charge of defense registrations.

Wright said the WPA had been so good to him he wanted to go out and fight for it.

American Legion officials said every man who registered "expressed a willingness to go back and fight again if called."

Diamond Imports Jump To High of 1,676 Lbs.

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.—(P)—The United States defense program stepped up imports of industrial diamonds to an all-time high of 1,676 pounds during 1940, statistics released by the industry disclosed today.

The stones, ranging from yellow to black and useful for cutting precision tools and as a grinding substance, were valued at $10,885,664. The 1940 imports were an increase of more than 150 per cent over the years preceding the war.

Greeks Seize 1,272 Fascists In One Week

16 Counterattacks Repulsed, Athens Spokesman Declares.

ATHENS, Feb. 24.—(Monday) (P)—The Greek army fighting in Albania captured 1,272 Italians during the past week and repulsed 16 counterattacks, a Greek government spokesman said early today.

Thirty officers were among the prisoners and considerable quantities of Fascist armament, mostly mortars and machineguns, also were taken, he said.

Taking the offensive in the central sector, the Greeks were said to have made strategic gains, but flooded streams and icy conditions still hampered all fighting.

Greek airmen shot down six Italian aircraft without losing a single machine themselves, he declared.

Greek artillery planted on heights overlooking the Italian lines in central Albania, shelled the Fascist positions heavily today while the Italians attempted to reorganize their lines, Greek sources declared tonight.

Turkey Warns Bulgarians To Oppose Nazis

Bulgaria for the admitted possibility of a German attack, appeared in the semi-official Ankara newspaper Ullus.

The Turkish-Bulgarian declaration, the foreign minister said, in no wise has altered Turkish foreign policy despite rumors and interpretations abroad that Turkey had thereby given a free hand to German action in the Balkans.

Turkey will "honor all her obligations" and will "defend herself if attacked," Saracoglu said.

The statement took on special significance in view of reports that Germany is almost ready to enter Bulgaria openly, for the purpose of bringing strong pressure on Greece to agree to an immediate peace with Italy.

(The official British radio, heard in New York, said that formal entry of German troops into Bulgaria appeared to be "imminent." The British Broadcasting Company said it is believed in Sofia that "Germany will justify her occupation of Bulgaria on the grounds that the British have landed, or are going to land" in Salonika; and public opinion is already being prepared for this line of reasoning.)

British Foiled Italy by Taking Offensive First

Duce's Drive on Egypt Thwarted, Mussolini Admits in Speech.

ROME, Feb. 23.—(P)—Premier Mussolini said in an address today that the following men and equipment had been assembled in north Africa for a planned advance into Egypt which the British thwarted by springing to the offensive from "five to 10 days" ahead of the Italians:

Officers	14,000
Soldiers	396,358
Cannon	1,924
Machineguns	15,386
Tanks	779
Trucks	9,584
Motorcycles	4,809
Artillery shells	11,000,000
Small arms ammunition (rounds)	1,344,287,275
Other material (tons)	151,877

In a Rome report published December 23 Marshal Graziani, Italian commander in Africa, blamed Italian reverses in Egypt and Libya on the lack of tanks and armored cars which he said failed to reach him from Italy.

After the fall of Bengasi the British in Africa estimated 122,000 Italians had been captured including 19 generals and one admiral, and numerous guns, tanks and stores. British sources had estimated that the original Italian force in Africa consisted of 250,000 men.

Two Lose Lives In Macon Crashes

MACON, Ga., Feb. 23.—(P)—Death struck twice on nearby highways today when one man was killed as a car overturned on the Macon-Gray road and another fatally hurt in a train-automobile accident on the Macon-Dublin road.

The victims were Robert Lee Hamlin, 45, of Macon, and James Booth, 24, of Allentown.

State Troopers C. D. Leverette and J. F. Hartfield said Hamlin was killed when he was pitched through the roof of a car in which he was riding. The officers said the machine left the highway, careened 100 yards, did a loop and then crashed into a tree on the road between Macon and Gray. Officers said Booth suffered fatal injuries when the truck in which he and another man were riding was in collision with a train at a grade crossing nine miles northwest of Jeffersonville on the Macon-Dublin road.

Dr. Banting, Discoverer of Insulin, Lost

Maritime Provinces or Newfoundland.

Sir Frederick enlisted at the start of the war as a captain in the Fifteenth General Hospital, Canadian Army Medical Corps. He was professor of medical research in the University of Toronto at that time.

Dr. Banting gave credit as co-discoverer of insulin in 1922 to Charles Herbert Best, of the University of Toronto. When he was awarded the Nobel Prize in 1923, Dr. Banting immediately said he would share it with Best.

Dr. Banting was credited with being the leader in his experiments with Dr. J. R. MacLeod and Dr. Best that led to discovery of the insulin treatment. Announcement of the discovery brought honors from many lands, including the Nobel prize for medicine, which he received jointly with Dr. MacLeod in 1923.

The findings that use of a pancreatic hormone helped diabetes sufferers was greeted at first with considerable doubt by medical authorities.

The Canadian government granted Sir Frederick an annuity of $7,500 to enable him to pursue an uninterrupted program of research, as medical men the world over hailed his discovery as the greatest since those of Pasteur. Through it all he remained loyal to his fellow workers. He thought it an injustice that the Nobel prize committee had not given equal recognition to Dr. Best, and shared with that scientist his own half of the prize, amounting to $5,600.

In 1938, Sir Frederick received recognition for work on cancer. Late that year, Dr. William Ewart Gye, director of the Imperial Cancer Research Fund in London, acclaimed the findings of Dr. Banting as "substantial contributions to the problem."

Dr. Gye added that "Dr. Banting is one of the world's really great men," an opinion shared by medical workers from Sydney to Victoria in Canada.

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.—(P)—General Foods Corporation today reported 1940 net income of $15,244,077 after all charges, expenses and provisions for taxes, equal after preferred dividend requirements to $2.77 a common share. This compared with $15,118,063, or $2.75 a share, in 1939.

Do You Know Your Cabinets? Here They Are

that a weekend assignment for the homework of fifth grade students in the Atlanta public schools was to learn the names of the men in the cabinets of Washington and Roosevelt, showing the difference between the two.

Here's Dope.

So as to play no favorites, here is the dope, kiddies, and may you all make "A".

There are 10 members of President Roosevelt's cabinet, while only five were in Washington's cabinet.

John Jay was the first secretary of foreign affairs. The office was soon changed, during Washington's administration, to "secretary of state." Jay resigned to become chief justice of the supreme court, and Thomas Jefferson was appointed in his place.

Other members of Washington's cabinet were Alexander Hamilton, secretary of the treasury; Henry Knox, secretary of war; Edmund Randolph, attorney general, and Samuel Osgood, postmaster general.

In President Roosevelt's cabinet Frank Knox is secretary of the Navy; Henry L. Stimson, secretary of war; Harold L. Ickes, secretary of the interior; Jesse H. Jones, secretary of commerce; Claude R. Wickard, secretary of agriculture; Frances Perkins, secretary of labor; Robert H. Jackson, attorney general; Henry Morgenthau, secretary of the treasury; Frank C. Walker, postmaster general, and Cordell Hull, secretary of state.

It proved an embarrassing assignment for mother and dad. And the reporters did some quick brushing up on history themselves.

F.D.R.'s Church Will Give Fund To the British

Collection To Be Sent to Episcopalians in England.

(Picture on Page 1.)
HYDE PARK, N. Y., Feb. 23.—(P)—President Roosevelt and the parishioners of St. James Episcopal church, the only American church in which rulers of Britain have worshipped, offered their bit of financial assistance today to the Church of England.

The President, who as senior warden holds the highest lay office, presided at a meeting of the vestry, which voted to give today's loose collection to the Church of England.

The Protestant Episcopal church in this country is trying to raise $300,000 to send to the "mother" church, which has suffered from the ravages of war along with other British institutions.

King George VI, head of the Church of England, and his queen attended divine services at St. James on June 11, 1939, sitting beside the President and Mrs. Roosevelt.

In the course of the morning announcements, the rector, the Rev. Frank R. Wilson, said that a special offering would be taken up this Sunday and next to help the Church of England.

"The church in England is scattered," he said. "It is like a fold without sheep. The men are in arms, the women in factories, and the children have been transplanted."

"The church, as England knows it, is not now functioning. They have asked if the daughter church will come to their aid."

"We have a real obligation to the Church of England, particularly here in this parish, where a little over a year ago we had assisting with us in the services that morning the royal family."

Mrs. Sara Delano Roosevelt, the President's 85-year-old mother, drove to church with her son.

After a big Sunday dinner, Mr. Roosevelt devoted some time to routine business. As usual during visits to his home here, the President was keeping tabs on international and domestic developments by means of a direct telephone wire to Washington.

Mr. Roosevelt expects to be back in Washington Tuesday.

German Major Throws Bottle At Envoy Earle in Sofia Cafe

Nazi Objects To Playing of 'Tipperary' by Orchestra.

SOFIA, Bulgaria, Feb. 23.—(P)—United States Minister George H. Earle said tonight that a German army major "threw a champagne bottle which just missed my head" in a cafe skirmish last night when the Nazi officer objected to the orchestra striking up his requested number, "Tipperary," a British World War marching song.

"The trouble began," Earle said at a special press conference, while exhibiting arm injuries suffered in the scuffle, "when the German cornered me in a washroom and demanded to know why I had given the orchestra the ten bucks to play Tipperary."

Threw Bottle. "I told him that was my business, and that Bulgaria was a neutral country. He then followed me outside and threw a champagne bottle which just missed my head. I wanted it off and retaliated by injuring his features."

The incident occurred in a restaurant just around the corner from the American legation.

In relating the incident, Earle, 220-pound former Pennsylvania Governor and World War commander of a submarine chaser, said that after leaving the washroom he returned to his table.

The orchestra still was playing "Tipperary" and he joined with others in singing it.

Hisses and boos came from other diners, and the saber-scarred German officer jumped to his feet and demanded that the song be stopped. The frightened manager complied. The orchestra swung into a German waltz.

From All Corners. This brought hisses and boos from those favoring "Tipperary." Then the bottle throwing began. The barrage lifted from all corners of the restaurant.

Women shrieked and men cursed. The women dived under the tables. Others fled to the kitchen.

One bottle flying through the air struck Earle on the arm, cutting him.

Another was seen to strike the German major full on the forehead. He fell to the floor unconscious.

Dancers Intervened. Ten men in heavy boots rushed across the floor toward Earle's table. A man described as a Bulgarian shoemaker and a group of male dancers intervened, as did restaurant attendants.

Finally Bulgarian army officers and a police emergency squad stormed into the restaurant, took the wounded German officer to a hospital and shoed all customers out into the dawn.

Earle said "the incident was regrettable but I saw no other course."

After his arm was dressed at the American legation Earle told the local press:

"It was hot while it lasted, and I still think 'Tipperary' is a swell tune."

Italians Seek Tunisian Haven For Colonists

them across France's northern African territory into Spanish Morocco.

The French government in Vichy rejected this proposal, however, because it might throw France back into the war, this time against Britain.

After rejection of Italy's hopes of removing her North African troops, it was understood, an approach was made to the French ambassador in Madrid, Francois Pietri, sounding him out on the civilian evacuation plan.

Pietri was said to have recognized immediately an opportunity whereby the Mentone and upper Maurienne territories might be regained from the Italian Army of Occupation, but at the same time he realized that the matter could best be handled if Franco served as a go-between.

Vichy Favors Move. It was believed in Vichy tonight the French government will consent to receive Italy's Libyan colonists in Tunisia only on condition that they be concentrated in camp and be stripped of any political rights, pending their eventual repatriation to Italy.

This would be similar to the manner in which thousands of Spanish refugees from the civil war were received in France in 1938.

Two vast problems were said to be involved in the negotiations:

1. French Tunisia has a large population to feed, with only small food reserves, and 80,000 more mouths would create a virtually impossible situation unless the Italian government assumed part of the burden.

2. A serious problem would be posed for France in connection with the disarming and internment of any Italian soldiers fleeing across the Libyan border into Tunisia with the civilian colonists.

Quads, 3 Girls And Boy, Born In Kentucky

Four Weigh Aggregate of 18 Pounds; All Survive.

LEITCHFIELD, Ky., Feb. 23.—(P)—Mrs. Porter Lasley, 42-year-old farm wife, already mother of eight children, gave birth to quadruplets today over a period of four hours.

The babies—three girls and a boy, weighing an aggregate of 18 pounds and 3-4 of an ounce—are to be removed to a Louisville hospital. The attending physician, Dr. John C. Tucker, said the quartet all was "very good except the boy. The mother is getting along nicely."

"They're good-looking children and I hope the Lord will let us keep them and care for them," said the mother.

Said the astonished 44-year-old father:

"Nothing like this ever happened before. My wife's grandmother had twins once—but that's the only record of anything different. Well, I guess this means my luck is going to look up." (He is recovering from a leg fracture suffered several months ago and a daughter, Ruth, 10, recently broke an arm.)

Italians. . . . The final battle is the one which counts."

Recites Failures. 3—"We are not like the English—we call bread bread and wine wine. Our tenth army (in eastern Libya) has been destroyed and our fifth air squadron has been destroyed; since we state this it is useless for the English to exaggerate the facts."

4—"The military reverses of recent months 'exasperate our will and must intensify our hate. . . . Hate is indispensable for final victory. . . . real working Italians must not be misled by a few anti-social people who complain about the rations."

5—"The Italian people must be prepared for a long war 'but the Axis will win. . . . England cannot win this war. . . . to beat the Axis England would have to land on the Continent, occupying Italy and Germany, and not even a drunken Englishman could hope for such a thing."

6—"No matter what happens Italy will march beside Germany to the end; the Fuehrer's offer to collaborate in the Mediterranean with air and armored detachments has proved this. . . . the co-operation between Italy and Germany is sincere and let foreigners know that the comportment of the German soldiers in Libya and Sicily is perfect and worthy of them."

7—"Neither Italy nor Germany intends to attack the United States. . . . the Americans can be sure no big bad wolf wants to devour them. The United States would be more liable to attack by the inhabitants of Mars."

8—"The United States is an 'oligarchy dominated by Jews' and President Roosevelt has set up 'a personal form of dictatorship.'"

9—"The United States has formidable industrial capacity, but it will be 'impossible' for the United States to deliver to Britain aid superior to Germany's production."

10—"Italy is awaiting the spring to force the capitulation of Greece, 'England's last stronghold in Europe.'"

11—"Russia's fundamental interests lead her to continue good relations with the Axis."

12—"London's claim of only 2,000 men lost in the conquest of eastern Libya is a lie and the real figure is at least 20,000."

Today's Italian war communiqué meanwhile reported that along the Lower Juba river in Italian Somaliland British motorized columns had been defeated "with noticeable losses" by an Italian Amhara battalion in battle.

Virginia Gayda, authoritative Fascist spokesman, asserted in the Sunday Voce d'Italia the British army has "stepped into a trap" in north Africa and "a new phase of the Mediterranean war" is about to begin.

Mussolini's speech was one of the frankest, acstic pronouncements since Italy's entrance into the war last June and was designed to have a reinvigorating effect on Italian morale.

Speaks Frankly. At the outset of his speech, Il Duce made it clear that he intended to speak frankly, saying: "Black Shirts of Rome, I come to look you firmly in the eyes and break my silence. Have you ever asked yourselves how long we are in the war? . . ."

"Actually, we have been at war since 1922, when we lifted the flag of our revolution against the plutocratic democracies of the world."

Turning to the present war, he said: "Although one of our enemies has been liquidated (France), enemy No. 1 remains to be served and we will fight to the last drop of blood against England."

Mussolini then boasted of the inseparability of the Italo-German fighting alliance and predicted its certain victory, although he admitted that "it is probable that we will have to fight a long time."

"England cannot win this war, and I'll prove it to you," he said. "To beat the Axis England would have to land on the continent, occupying Italy and Germany, and not even a drunken Englishman could hope for such a thing."

Whatever may occur, Germany and Italy will march together, he added, as has been "proven" by Hitler's dispatch of air and armored units to the Mediterranean war zone, including Stuka dive-bomber squadrons now based in Sicily and attacking the British in north Africa."

WEAKNESS CONFESSED, BRITISHERS' COMMENT LONDON, Feb. 23.—(P)—British political sources called Premier Mussolini's speech today a confession of weakness and unfulfilled boasts.

The diplomatic correspondent of the Press Association, British news agency, pointed to Il Duce's comparisons of Britain and Germany contrasted with his earlier utterances in which "Italy was supposed to regard herself not merely as an equal of Great Britain, but as master over British forces in the entire Mediterranean."

"There no longer was the same boastful, bombastic claim that Mussolini's forces will be able to throw back the British beyond the Suez canal and thus add new trophies to the Italian Empire," the correspondent added.

"The note struck now is that the Italian people should take comfort from the fact that German strength is so great the Nazis might be able to pull Italian chestnuts out of the fire."

Defiant France Ready To Fight For Indo-China

Government in Vichy Is Prepared To Oppose an 'Unjust Peace.'

VICHY, Feb. 23.—(UP)—France will fight with all the resources at her command any effort to impose an unjust peace on Indo-China in that country's border conflict with Thailand, an official spokesman told the United Press tonight.

The Thai-Indo-China armistice agreement, arranged under Japanese mediation, will expire within 48 hours and the spokesman said it was not likely this agreement will be renewed.

There has been no change in the decision of the French government, which has been sent to its delegates in Tokyo, to reject Japanese proposals for a compromise peace which would involve extensive territorial concessions wholly by France, the spokesman added.

The cabinet met Friday and rejected the Japanese plan, and so far as is known here nothing has been accomplished in the Tokyo conference since the French attitude was made known.

Catholic Homes Raided In Ireland, Bishop Says BELFAST, Feb. 23.—(P)—Northern Ireland government forces have raided "Catholic homes" on an "almost incredible scale" since war began, the Rt. Rev. Mageean, Roman Catholic bishop of Down and Connor, charged today.

In a Lenten pastoral letter the bishop declared the raids continued regularly with Ulster forces who oppose union with predominantly Catholic Eire to the south, battering in the doors of homes with rifle butts and brandishing revolvers during questioning of Catholic families.

Duce's Speech Acknowledged Defeat—Bomar

Reassured Weary Italy She Would Be Mostly on Sidelines.

By EDWARD BOMAR.

Premier Mussolini's unheralded speech embodied a reassurance to his buffeted nation that in the imminent Axis onslaught on Great Britain, weary Italy would be mostly on the sidelines.

His speech, the second since he led Italy into war last June, was such an acknowledgment of defeat and punctured promises that some of his hearers must have wondered why Il Duce saw fit just now to break the silence he said was so dear to him.

The one apparent purpose was to buoy Fascist morale by directing attention to the arrival of Nazi forces and to the rapidly developing German spring offensive against Britain at home and in the Balkans.

In a strange new role offering few opportunities for bombast, a chastened Mussolini spoke cryptically of a possible renewal of the bogged-down offensive against Greece in the spring.

The disclosure that his Libyan forces numbered more than 400,000 must have afforded satisfaction to the British in view of the far smaller size of the victorious Army of the Nile.

The contrast with his saber-rattling of last November 18, when Il Duce previously addressed the nation, was such as to convey the impression that he had all but put into words the acknowledgment that Italy now must look to Adolf Hitler rather than Benito Mussolini for hope.

ATLANTA, GA., FEBRUARY 24, 1941.

Familiar Pattern

There is something horribly familiar about the pattern of Japanese words and actions in the rapidly forming crisis in the East. It is strikingly like the method employed by Hitler at the time of the Munich agreement, that apogee of international deceit.

Hitler, it will be remembered, said at Munich that, if he were allowed to occupy the Sudeten area of Czechoslovakia, he would have no more territorial ambitions and would leave the Czechs, the Poles and all other smaller nations of Europe undisturbed and at peace. Chamberlain made the fatal error of believing him, of conferring with him on the same basis that men of honor would confer.

Today, the Tokyo press protests British moves for self-protection in the Pacific, and says, if these moves continue, "Japan naturally will be compelled to take counter measures."

In other words, "If you don't permit us to put ourselves in the best possible position to take the Philippines, to threaten Australia and New Zealand, to drive you out of Singapore, we shall consider your interference as unfriendly."

Just like Munich. "Let us have our way now and we promise not to take later advantage." But, after the present advantage is gained, if Britain and the United States are foolish enough to permit it, the Japanese will move on, by duplicity or force, to the next and the next. Until it is too late for either of the great western democracies to do anything about it.

It is not likely, however, that either the United States or the British governments will be so glibly as to heed either Japanese threats or Japanese promises. Britain is rapidly strengthening her positions in the East. New troops, new planes and new equipment are already at Singapore. Her Asiatic fleet is ready for any eventuality.

The United States is rushing additional planes to Hawaii, is planning the fortification of Guam.

Both countries know, well, that Japan is absolutely unfit for a war with any major power. Her resources drained by the adventure into China, her fleet far lower in quality than either the American Pacific fleet or the British naval contingents on the scene, her homeland and her industry fearfully vulnerable to attack by air, Japan can only seek by bluff and duplicity to gain her ends. Once she is convinced that a continuance of her present threats and arrogance means war, she will quickly back down. It is up to both Britain and the United States to adopt such a policy and take such action as is necessary to so convince her.

If it can be done by economic pressure, well and good. If it takes the imminent threat of guns and bombs, then guns and bombs must be ready for use.

Then there was the small Balkan country which, after making the graceful somersault in midair, found Hitler on its trapeze.

Matrimony Made Easy

Leonard Crawford, assistant solicitor of the Fulton criminal courts, has recommended that marriage licenses, which now involve an expenditure of $4, be made free. Many persons, he declares, both white and Negroes, are forced to resort to "common law" marriages by inability to pay the fee.

Undoubtedly Mr. Crawford is correct when he says that this situation tends to increase crime and to lower social conditions. At the same time, even under such circumstances, it is really ignorance that causes the trouble, instead of the actual circumstance itself. For, actually, a common law marriage is legal and binding and the participants in such a marriage are quite legally wed. Ignorance and misunderstanding, however, brand such unions as illegal and the children of such unions as illegitimate. It is this public scorn which creates a sense of inferiority and handicap, twin breeders of anti-social habits and criminal tendencies.

Marriage should, of course, never be undertaken by anyone without most serious understanding of the responsibilities involved. And, even though they are legal and binding, "common law" marriages are undesirable in any decent and Christian community.

All laws, except that charging a fee for the license, encourage marriage and make it as easy as possible. It would seem to be the course of wisdom to do away with the fee. Certainly, a marriage begun under the happiest and most sacred of auspices is more apt to be successful and to last than one launched under the shadow of "common law" opprobrium.

Travelers entering Italy now must give a reason for doing so, says a cable. One could, of course, dress up as a homing general.

Good Example

An unusual labor contract was signed recently in New York at a ceremony presided over by Mayor LaGuardia. Covering employers and employees in New York's largest industry—dress manufacturing—it includes details that all industry and labor could well study. It would not be applicable in all fields, but in more than a few would provide a basis for co-operation never before equalled in the American field of labor relations.

One of the major points calls for the raising of a fund of from $3,000,000 to $4,500,000 in the next three years to promote the industry and "establish New York city as the fashion center of the world."

Another provision calls for the establishment of an "efficiency department" through which workers may advise their employers in an effort to reduce instances of poor management which result in idle time for piece workers and other avoidable losses both to worker and employer and through which the shop experience of the worker is made available to the management of the factories in the industry.

This is not Utopian, but it is an example of the farsightedness of labor leaders guiding the destinies of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, which was born under appalling conditions on the east side of New York shortly before the turn of the century. It was perhaps the most bitterly fought union ever to reach maturity in this country. Started in an industry notorious for sweatshop labor, for child labor and for almost every malpractice in labor relations known to mankind, the ILGWU has grown into one of the most progressive unions in the United States—that is to say, in the world. The industry has progressed with the union and it is very evident that employers in this new contract have acknowledged the benefits that can be attained by sensible unionism and able management.

It is heartening to find one instance of unusual co-operation. It is worthy of the study of all Americans, whether or not they are directly concerned with labor or management problems.

Shortsighted Iowans

The shortsightedness of state trade barrier advocates has seldom been better exemplified than in a recent debate in the Iowa house of representatives on a measure which would have barred use of butter substitutes in local county institutions, such as jails, hospitals and old folks' homes.

To a statement of one legislator that adoption of the bill "might encourage other states to enact legislation against the products of our state," another asserted that the southern states are "insignificant" markets. He assailed "gesture of friendship" statements of opponents, concluding with a brilliant question: "How about being friendly to the people you represent rather than to the southern sharecroppers who aren't going to buy your products anyway?"

The south today might be an "insignificant" market in comparison to other sections of the country, but one must doubt that it will remain such, particularly under the impetus of the current defense program. Certain it is that the south in latter years has been forced to seek expanded production in various fields—notably livestock, hogs, corn, truck and general dairy products, as well as in industry—because of the shortsightedness of eastern and middle-western sections seeking to perpetuate an economic bondage, no small part of which has been due to interstate trade barriers such as that now proposed in the Iowa legislature.

This section of the country harbors no ill will against other sections. But incidents such as that posed in Des Moines must eventually force parallel action here if the south is to deal fairly with its own people. No one wants trade barriers. They should be anathema to all who can see their result in Europe. But if the people of Iowa elect legislators who cannot see beyond the borders of their own state, then there will be no alternative left those who would have it otherwise. Inevitably, there must be a day of reckoning.

Georgia Editors Say:

COURT WEEK

(From The Lavonia Times.)
Those old enough to remember 40 years back can see the evolution of our court weeks. Once court week was the place where drunkenness, horse trading, fighting, etc., were prevalent. We can remember when a lady did not go on the streets of Carnesville on Tuesday and Wednesday of court week. Now court week is as quiet as any other week. Also there is the absence of the medicine vendors, who sold the cure-alls to an unwitting public. That's nearly gone.

THE CAPITAL PARADE

By JOSEPH ALSOP AND ROBERT KINTNER.

AMERICA'S BEAVERBROOKS WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—At present no one can say precisely whose job it is to plan and execute the crucial air production program. The very officials now at work on it are far from certain, so vaguely is the responsibility dispersed between the Office of Production Management, the War and Navy Departments and several other agencies. After much travail, however, a rational solution of the problem at last seems to be in prospect.

The solution, like most rational solutions, is pretty simple. Already on the job in the War Department is Robert Lovett, a wartime air ace and New York banker recently brought into the government by his friend, Undersecretary of War Robert Patterson. Now at leisure is Thomas G. Corcoran, once the sparkplug of the New Deal group, and a friend of Undersecretary of the Navy James Forrestal. If the solution above-mentioned is not still-born, Lovett will be named assistant secretary of war, with the aviation program as his special field, and a roughly equivalent place will be made for Corcoran at the Navy Department. Thus the basic responsibility will at last be clearly fixed, and fixed, furthermore, in the hands of two men who can work easily together, and are the sort to get a job done.

LAGUARDIA AS CZAR Before Lovett and Corcoran can be definitely gazetted, however, an alternative solution, equally interesting but less administratively probable, must first be disposed of. New York's bustling Mayor F. H. LaGuardia, another wartime airman, has long been anxious to get a big job in the national defense set-up and he is now reportedly being backed by Secretary of Treasury Henry Morgenthau Jr. for the position of America's Beaverbrook.

LaGuardia's supporters are extremely secretive. It is difficult to discover just whose functions they propose to transfer to the mayor. But the best guess is that the big new air division of the OPM would be put under him, and that he would be given at least part of the authority for air procurement now lodged in the procurement branches of the War and Navy Departments. In short, whatever his official rank, he would become the American equivalent of an air-production minister.

Secretary Morgenthau has a voice in the matter as the man chosen by the President to be the spokesman of the British in the government. His backing of LaGuardia is no doubt traceable to natural impatience with the air production set-up now in operation. The original scope of preparation was far too small. Recognition of its inadequacy has been far too slow in coming. Men like Lovett trying to improve and enlarge the program, immediately found themselves enmeshed in the intricacies of the Goldberger administrative machinery. For months naming an air-production czar has been an obvious remedy, and LaGuardia certainly possesses the toughness, drive and bounce required for efficient czarism.

LAGUARDIA'S SPONSOR The trouble with the LaGuardia appointment is, quite simply, that it has been proposed too late. Had the President then the plunge last June, or even immediately after the election, all would have been well. But no man who suffers from no competitors or even coadjutors. If he gets even a part of the air job in his hands, the fur will fly until he has it all. As a good many able men are on the job already, the sudden recruitment of LaGuardia would be likely to disorganize the entire defense set-up for a considerable period thereafter. For this reason Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox and Undersecretary Forrestal strongly resisted an effort to locate LaGuardia in the Navy Department. And again for this reason the chief of the defense services will be sure to fight Morgenthau's plan tooth and nail, making its adoption a poor bet.

The comment on this situation might be, "Better late than never," if the plan proposed by the defense services were not extremely attractive.

In the short time he has been in charge of the air problem at the War Department, Lovett has shown enough good sense, decision and imagination to equip several government officials. Whatever may be thought of his opinions on domestic policy, there can be little question that Corcoran is energetic and drive equal LaGuardia's, or that he knows better than anyone else how to carry a project up and down the mazes of the governmental labyrinth. The human factor is always the weightiest in any governmental equation, and if solid authority is confided to Lovett and Corcoran, the fact that the responsibility for air production is still officially dispersed will grow far less important.

The obstacles to both the LaGuardia and the Lovett-Corcoran solutions of the air problem, for neither LaGuardia nor Corcoran can be brought into the government until jobs are created for them, and Corcoran has a lingering objection to remaining in Washington. There are also obvious points in favor of both solutions. Finally, there is a third possible solution, by which LaGuardia would be given the same task as the British air production minister, while Lovett and Corcoran divided the British air minister's equally vital duties. The main thing is, however, that the air problem must at last be squarely tackled in one way or another, unless one of the usual bureaucratic battles intervenes.

The Life Of Churchill.

Winston Churchill, the man who is so superbly meeting his task as leader of the British people in their greatest hour of trial, the man who today is, beyond question, the outstanding figure of our age, is thought of by most Americans as an oldish, stout and rather stodgy sort of a fellow. A typical Britisher with all the fussiness of type, as well as the bulldog tenacity and the fearless acceptance of facts.

As a matter of fact, Winston Churchill is only half English; his mother was American, the former Jennie Jerome, daughter of Leonard Jerome, publisher and co-editor of the New York Times. His father was the son of the Duke of Marlborough, the descendant of a long line of English statesmen and heroes.

Churchill, as a boy, went to school at Harrow, famous English school for boys. He spent three years in the army class there and then prepared for Sandhurst, British equivalent of West Point. His favorite sports as a youth were riding, fencing and swimming, and his favorite class subjects were history, poetry, essay writing and oratory. As a young man he had a slight lisp, but by sheer will-power overcame it to become the great orator he has been for years.

At the outbreak of the Boer War in South Africa, Churchill was sent as a war correspondent for the London Morning Post. He insisted on going with an armored train sent to reconnoiter enemy positions. They were ambushed by the Boers and, though the train later shot Churchill's heroism actually saved most of them, he was captured by the Boers. He was placed in an internment camp for prisoners of war but escaped by climbing through a window, hopping a freight train. In jumping from that train he turned both his ankles, but nevertheless covered hundreds of miles, hiding by day and walking with the aid of a couple of sticks, at night. He finally found friends and was smuggled out of the country inside a bale of wool.

An Officer Of Hussars.

He was, after graduation from Sandhurst, an officer in the Queen's Own Hussars. When the war broke out in 1895 he went to the front as a war correspondent and for bravery under fire was given the Spanish Order of Military Merit, First Class.

Returning to England, his regiment was ordered to India for 14 years. In India he won fame as a polo player. After again returning to London, he was sent, again as a correspondent, to cover the rebellion of the Pathans. He had more adventures here and escaped death several times only by apparent miracles.

It was after the Boer War that he first ran for parliament and was elected at Oldham. His brilliant speech was in answer to Lloyd George. Later he and Lloyd George became fast friends. He opposed woman suffrage, and, as a guest of the Kaiser, witnessed and was deeply impressed at a review of the German army. Shortly before the first World War he was made First Lord of the Admiralty by Asquith, and it was Churchill's wisdom, in the summer of 1914, that held the British navy in home waters, ready for anything—which came on August 4, 1914.

Served On Front Line.

He served on the front line in the World War and, while with the admiralty, he ordered the building of the first tanks. But when he was put out, after the failure of the Gallipoli campaign, which he had ordered, the tank idea was dropped. One sample, however, went through and it was from the work done by this tank that their value and importance were realized.

After the war he devoted himself to his hobbies of painting and managing an English country estate. He even helped lay the bricks of his own home, with his own hands. He interviewed Mussolini in 1926.

During a visit to the United States in 1929 he was hit by a taxi in New York.

When the MacDonald government of Britain began the policy of appeasement toward Hitler, Churchill constantly warned against the Nazis and the present war came as no surprise to him. And everybody in the world knows what he is doing in this war!

I found the story of Churchill's life in the first issue of a publication called "True Comics."

I can't see what is comic in the life of Churchill; can you?

But did think a few of you might not know some of the details and would be interested in reading them here.

Few men have had such an adventurous career as the man who now promises his countrymen nothing but "blood, toil, tears and sweat," but who is, nevertheless, the greatest national hero they have ever acclaimed.

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

Mrs. Spelvin NEW YORK, Feb. 23.—Mrs. George Spelvin, American, having been called to Washington to give her views on the state of the Union, testified as follows: A. (By Mrs. Spelvin)—Well, I must say you take me by surprise, asking me to come here, because the way things have been going these last several years, why, the idea seems to me that if you don't spend all your time running around to lectures, well, a woman who spends her time trying to raise the children right instead of organizing things all the time, like committees for this and that and, as far as I can see, it is pretty near a full-time job running a home and leave the husband take care of such things, because I have been a woman quite a long time myself, and some of these busy-body women can't fool me just because they are women, whereas a man thinks just because a woman is a woman you are supposed to be treated differently when it comes to politics.

Q. (By Senator Nilly, Ind., Ind.) Will you be good enough to clarify your last remark, Mrs. Spelvin, because I am sorry I perhaps didn't pay strict attention, but it seems to me I don't quite understand whether you mean a woman in public life, as compared with a housewife—and we all know motherhood is God's noblest mission for womankind—and naturally every man with a spark of divinity would be untrue to the holy memory of the mother who bore him if, as you say, and I heartily agree these matters call for unusual dignity, but, on the other hand, since women have the vote, and in case of war we all know the great sacrifices made by the English women—

"Money Isn't Everything" A. (By Mrs. Spelvin)—Oh, no, Senator Nilly, that isn't what I mean at all, because my viewpoint goes much further, unless, of course, we actually get into the war, but until we do I always think back to the other war when I was just a mere slip of a girl and Mr. Spelvin was overseas in the Second Division, but the very day he landed back he sent me a wire reminding me of my promise and, of course, I was terribly excited, and we didn't have any money to get married on, but my mother said, "money isn't everything," and I have never forgotten those words, and it certainly makes me sick and tired, all this mollycoddling young people, and the government has to help them through college until they are even 25 years old, when we know all very well a person that old ought to be ashamed to be living on their parents or the government, unless they are sick or something or it is just impossible to find a job, and yet we have this Youth Congress and the government youth department here in Washington and the worst of it is—

Q. (By Senator Nilly)—I take it, Mrs. Spelvin, that you seem to have in mind something on the order of the great President Abraham Lincoln, who became one of the greatest men the world has ever known, but, inasmuch as we have progressed so enormously, I wish you would give me a concrete example of an imaginary case where a woman has met her solemn responsibilities to God and country because, to face facts, today we have the electric icebox and the vacuum cleaner, and the mother no longer bakes the bread for the whole family, as my dear old mother did, and the boys always kept the kindling box full and a fresh pile of water from the well, and still we managed to work our way through college, but if you take the case of a college youth today—

"Naturally, A. (By Mrs. Spelvin)—There you put your finger right on the very thing I was trying to say in my own way, but I am not used to public life, and, naturally, it flusters me being here before your honors, but the whole thing in a nutshell, senator, boils right down to whether a woman ought to raise their own children and never mind the neighbors' and not go around stirring up committees and speeches when there is already so much disturbance that you can hardly turn on the radio without you hear some woman yelling her head off about youth or how all the women ought to join something, whereas it is true I have a vacuum and I buy store bread, but the government has formed so many ABC's and XYZ's and this and that until nobody knows what are these various departments that are eating up the taxes, and I don't mind saying I am opposed to it without fear or favor.

Serious Nilly.—The committee thanks you, Mrs. Spelvin, for coming here and giving us this clear, constructive viewpoint.

Diver's Disease.

Excessive perspiration is the cause of an odd disease which afflicts the Malay and Japanese divers working the pearl beds of Australia, in the opinion of a doctor who has treated some of the cases. In a report received in Melbourne he expresses his belief that the illness is due mainly to depletion of the natural salts of the human system caused by perspiration while the diver is working in a heavy rubber suit. The doctor suggests that if divers drink salted liquid before they begin their work the illness may be prevented.

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH MCGILL.

MR. OLIVER WISWELL Mr. Kenneth Roberts, the well-known writer of excellent historical novels, produced some weeks ago a best seller "Oliver Wiswell". It is a novel of the American Revolution, written from the Tory, or Loyalist, side of that struggle. It is a long novel, and to me rather dull in a majority of its pages.

Mr. Roberts' Mr. Wiswell too often reminded me of that small bit of verse:

In matters controversial
My perception's very fine.
I always see both points of view,
The one that's wrong—and mine!

The book purports to show that the American Revolution was conceived in selfish dishonesty by persons of no character; that it was carried on by pock-marked cowards under officers who were villains and entirely lacking in courage; that it was won only because of the stupidity of the British whose politicians out of office did not wish the Whigs to get back into office, and finally, that all the decent people were loyalists who, after defeat, left the country and settled in Nova Scotia.

On one page Mr. Roberts neatly contrives to have the pock-marked, greasy-haired, surly rebels march by, dusty and dirty, while, along the same roads and in the same dust, the hired Hessians arrive in applecheeked, cleanly cheeriness.

It is a most confusing book and while it is entertaining in some sections of its vast length, the final summing up, to me at least, was contradictory and unsound.

There was, of course, a lively little civil war going on during that time as the American rebels fought the British. And there was much terrorism and brutality. The loyalists suffered much. So did the rebels. Here in Georgia, for instance, the tide ebbed and flowed for both sides and when one was in power the homes of the others were burned and property destroyed. And some, of each side, were killed.

Those things always happen in civil wars. Mr. Roberts presented the loyalists' share of terror and mistreatment.

PLEA FOR APPEASEMENT Mr. Roberts argues, through Mr. Wiswell, that the rebels should have been appeased. He insists it was wanton, selfish waste and dishonest leadership on the American side which prevented an appeasement.

The differences, he says, in this long book, could have been, and should have been, settled by an agreement.

He then takes great care to prove, in detail, that without exception, from the King on down, the British leaders with authority were stupid, dishonest, selfish and blind to what was happening.

He sends Mr. Oliver Wiswell and his friends to London and proves it there. He then sends him to Paris, and after great travail in stealing the French documents, proves once more that the English leaders were stupid and so set in their stupid ways that nothing at all could have changed them.

From this most effective picture it at once is apparent the cause of the American colonies could never have been settled. Their wrongs would never have had redress from the arrogant dullards which Mr. Wiswell encountered and which, at times, drove Mr. Wiswell to tears and to distraction.

You will go far to find a worse set of insolent arrogance than the English authorities sent to deal with the American colonies and you will go far to find a worse set than Mr. Wiswell found in London.

It is a curious argument for appeasement which is made in this book. And one impossible of achievement. One knows had one been made it would have been violated without the slightest compunction by the British rulers of that time. The Revolution was necessary.

Samuel Adams may have been a smuggler—smuggling was an honorable occupation in those times—and Ben Franklin may have had a mistress up every street in Paris. But even so, the cause of the rebels, unarmed and unarmored, still seems just—and inevitable—to me.

BENEDICT ARNOLD He presents a new picture of Benedict Arnold, the American traitor who was undone in a plot to surrender West Point, and who fled to the British to serve them and die in London, unhonored and unsung by those whose gold he took.

Arnold, in our time, would be, without doubt, a kleagle in the Ku Klux Klan or, perhaps, even an imperial wizard. He was so much an anti-Catholic that when the English gave the French in Canada the right to embrace and profess the Catholic religion he joined the rebels. When they made a treaty with France he quit them and joined the English. Later, when the rebels made a treaty, he went back to the English. Arnold was a great soldier. He demonstrated it for each army for which he fought. But, somehow, the man's treachery does not seem admirable for all the gliding of the act or the man's ability.

Without doubt, he would have been an exalted something in the curious mentalities which make up most of the membership of the Klan today.

So, while I liked Mr. Oliver Wiswell himself and gloried in his courage and loyalty, I still find all my sympathy going out to the men who dared oppose the mightiest power in the world and win their independence.

Even Mr. Wiswell, further to confuse his own ideas, has a place late in the book where he warns the English that the new leaders, notably Jefferson, have made of the Revolution something new and more powerful and that it was not, even then, what it was in the beginning.

Those men saw the British ruling class of their time and knew there could have been no appeasement with them.

Long live Jefferson!

You Can't Conquer a Proud Animal That Prefers Death To Captivity

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

Some years ago a few of the most successful composers and song writers formed an organization for their mutual protection. They considered it an obvious injustice that others should use their music to make money and pay them nothing for it. And no one of them, acting alone, could hope to catch and prosecute the thousands of big and little pirates who used his copyrighted work without so much as a thank-you.

Now the government is prosecuting them as criminals. They are charged with unlawful combination and conspiracy in restraint of trade.

They may lose in court, but they can always have the last word. They can refuse to write any more songs and music, and starve rather than submit to what they consider injustice.

Mothers all over the world bitterly resent the system that empowers bungling diplomats to use their boys as pawns and cannon-fodder when diplomacy fails.

They are helpless in the face of custom and tyranny. Yet they also have the last word.

They can refuse to bear more sons until mankind becomes sane and ends warfare once for all.

The world-wide campaign to divide accumulated wealth seems an outrageous injustice to those whose industry and daring and superior skill have created it.

They cannot prevent the laws and punitive taxes that would strip them of their rewards, but they can have the last word.

They can quit and retire to little farms, leaving the incompetent to wreck and dissipate what they have built.

People in conquered lands have bitter hearts as they labor in the service of a master, but they can have the last word if they will. They can quit, and no power on earth can harness their skill and energy against their will.

You can lead a horse to water, but you can't make him drink. The weak, by passive resistance, can thwart the most powerful. Their own unwillingness to pay the price of victory is all that enables a master to control them.

Learns That Farmers Don't Laugh Much—And Why They Don't

Somebody—to whom I can give no credit because the piece has been drifting around the rural press—says farmers don't laugh much. And he gives what he thinks are the reasons why:

His theory is that their environment makes them sober minded. Working alone in the open fields, face to face with nature, he thinks, naturally makes men serious.

But a farmer friend of ours does not agree with this scientific chap. He has another explanation for the peculiarity which the professor thinks he has found in the tiller of the soil. This is what he has to say concerning it:

"He may be right in spots. But communing with nature ain't what keeps me from laughing. It is that darned old red steer that gets in the garden at the wrong time; that old spotted cow that kicks when you milk her; that blamed mule that can jump the moon; along with forty million cockleburrs; fourteen thousand chores, besides trimming the hedge fence and cutting the sprouts out of the new grounds. And, too, a four months' drought in growing time and a fourteen-inch rain at gathering time don't hatch grins very fast.

"Take that white mule, for instance. That mule won't never stay put. Put him in the barn and when you come back he's in the pasture. Put him in the pasture and when you come back he's in somebody's else's pasture.

"When we got ready to start to town last week I said to the old woman: 'I'll stall that dratted mule for once.' I put him in the smoke house and nailed up the door. There is just one window in the smoke house and it is ten feet from the floor.

"When we came back that blasted mule was in the middle of Johnson's cornfield—with that window shash around his neck.

"Now a town man would have laughed his fool head off about it. But by the time I got four hired men to help me run that beast across four fields and corner it and had paid Johnson four dollars, there wasn't a grin on my face as big as the wrinkle on an egg shell.

"No sir, the reason there isn't no laughter on the farm is because there ain't no call for it."

Conductor of this department of uplift and misinformation just can't raise a temperature over "bills introduced."

duced," if you figure them at the junk dealers' price per ton of white paper, to pay the teachers' back salaries and cut the nefarious gasoline tax in half.

They go into the hopper. They are referred to the proper—or improper—committee, depending upon how Mr. Speaker looks upon them.

And the committee forgets about them. Until at 11:30 p. m. on the night of the closing session, the authors insist upon calling them up. The traditional recommendation—if any—is that: "This bill does not pass."

So the author goes back home and tells the boys around Old Man Johnson's grocery that he'd done the very best he could—but the interests beat him. If they'll give him another chance he'll put it over, "in spite of hell and high water."

Good Old Car
Lawyer down in Alabama, according to story in his local paper, acquired an automobile 22 years ago—in lieu of a fee.

It wasn't much of an automobile then. Pretty well worn out. He had a newer car, so he stored it in his barn. And it stayed there until last week—a good place for chickens to roost.

But he discovered he needed the space, so he had the old car pushed out in to the barnyard. And then got curious about whether it would run.

It did. Story doesn't say how much muscle power was required to move those "frozen" pistons. But it does say he put a few gallons of gas in the tank and squirreled some oil here and there and installed a good battery from his modern car and stepped on her—and she went off with a roar.

He drove her around town. Carefully, because the tires were pretty rotten and hardly would hold air. And was he proud!

She might make a good car even now, after a little work. But I wonder if he could buy tires of her size. They've changed somewhat in 22 years.

Family over in Flat Rock, which is near Villa Rica, was just a settler's around a few afternoons ago when a truck driver stopped his vehicle, climbed the front steps and knocked.

"Come in," said the head of the household, hospitably.

"Some other time," said the caller. "Just wanted to tell you your house is burnin' down."

Which it was. The fire was blazing merrily on the opposite side of the house from where the folks were toasting their toes. The piano and radio were saved.

20-Ton Bomber Leaves N. Y. Base for England

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.—(AP)—The 20-ton, B-24 consolidated bomber which arrived a week ago after a 270-mile-an-hour non-stop flight from San Diego, Cal., took off today en route to England.

The four-engined, high-winged monoplane, one of 26 ordered by Great Britain, was rolled out of its guarded hangar at dawn and its immediate destination was announced. Members of the English crew refused comment on a report that the bomber would fly first to Canada to be equipped with guns before its overseas hop.

Augusta Man Is Killed

When Car Hits Bridge

SAVANNAH, Ga., Feb. 23.—(AP)—Henry Grady Smith, about 40, of Augusta, was instantly killed yesterday afternoon when a car he was driving crashed into the railing of a bridge over the Ogeechee river on Route 80, 22 miles from here.

He was alone in the car, which, reportedly, skidded into the wooden railing of the bridge, carrying away about 30 feet of the railing. He was a log buyer for the Savannah River Lumber Company in Augusta.

Cool Morning

By LOUIE D. NEWTON.

The Anderson (S. C.) Daily Mail pays high tribute to Hart county in the following editorial:

"There isn't a beer stand or road house in Hart county, Georgia. Hart is not the largest county in Georgia, although it has an area of 246 square miles and a population of approximately 18,000; nevertheless, it is one of the finest.

"Beer stands and road houses are as popular in Hart county as holy water is with the devil, and there's a reason: It has good schools and churches. Beer stands and road houses aren't tolerated. If we can find it, we'll bet grandpa's old bottle against a glass of Louie Morris' buttermilk that there isn't another county on U. S. 29 (Main street of the south) which can boast of having no beer stand or road house.

"Hart county has set an enviable record, and by so doing has thrown a tremendous responsibility upon those who assume the name of Christians."

Georgians generally will appreciate this tribute from our South Carolina neighbor to the fine people of Hart county, and we will not forget the challenge of the last paragraph of the Daily Mail's editorial.

I have the good fortune to live in DeKalb county, where beer joints and road houses have the constant and uncompromising oversight of public officials of real courage. Operators of these places know that they have got to obey the law, or else.

There is a right place for tourist camps. And the majority of them, undoubtedly, are operated for legitimate ends, under strict and constant supervision of the county governments in which they are located. Unfortunately, there are enough tourist camps, so-called, that are nothing less than dens of vice, to give cause for alarm on the part of every law-abiding citizen.

The counties in which such places operate can break them up if the Christian people will do their duty. If the solicitor and sheriff wink at these places, such officials should be removed from office. But the best public officials cannot enforce the law unless the Christian people of the community uphold their hands.

The quicker we close up every questionable beer and liquor joint, and every road house devoted to drinking, gambling and prostitution, the better it will be for the community, and particularly for the rapidly increasing population of soldiers in training for national defense. This is no time for exploitation of youth for the sake of a few racketeers.

The Pulse of the Public

The Constitution invites expression of opinion by its readers. This column is open for that purpose. All communication must be signed and all are subject to editing for conservation of space. Brevity makes argument effective and impels attention.

February 22, 1941.

Editor Constitution: The editorial which appeared in Saturday's paper is very timely. It should be clearly apparent to every member of the state senate that the bill sponsored by Senator Edwards would be unconstitutional. However, I doubt seriously if the members of the state senate, as well as the business people of Georgia, realize the potential harm that could be done in Georgia by passing or either considering seriously such an illegal bill.

The President of the United States and the chairman of the defense commission, who certainly could not be called pro labor, have stated definitely that they do not favor any such legislation from a national standpoint, which is the only type of legislation which would be legal.

I also know the national administration and every one else who is familiar with the subject and give any thought to it, realize that it is dangerous for the welfare of the country and very likely disastrous to the state of Georgia to agitate a racial issue at this time.

I am convinced that should any legislation, either legal or illegal, affecting labor on defense projects, be enacted at this session of the Georgia legislature, the national administration and the defense commission would no doubt solve the problem by placing defense projects in other states. So I think it would be well that the thinking people of this state consider the effect it would have on the welfare of this state as to labor, both organized and unorganized, and on every line of business endeavor should the defense projects be withheld from this state.

I feel so strongly about these things and the probable results are so clearly apparent to me, that I wonder whether or not the members of the legislature are really seriously considering passing such legislation. If they feel that we need chastising through unfavorable publicity, I see no need to pursue it further, as we have been subject almost daily to a barrage of rumors and unsupported statements, and yet, insofar as I have been able to learn the law enforcement agencies of this state have not found enough truth in a single instance to indict or to prosecute one single case of labor leaders' racketeering.

I also notice in the morning paper that the publicity director of the CIO is attempting to gain favorable consideration for that group by boasting low initiation fees and low monthly dues, and at the same time stating they do not represent a single person on the building projects in Georgia.

It is not important what your initiation fees or monthly dues are in an organization if you have no members to serve, it is only a theory. The American Federation of Labor unions are real and composed of thousands of highly skilled mechanics in Georgia, and the service this organization renders to its members requires funds, as does any other organization rendering a real service to its membership.

There are always two sides to every question, and the people of Georgia have only heard the side of our accusers. If it was possible for us to get over our side of the question and inform the people of Georgia as to the services these organizations are rendering to the people of this state, we would not be condemned; we would be appreciated.

Yours very truly,
DEWEY L. JOHNSON,
President, Georgia Federation of Labor.

SAYS "NEW DEAL" IS "THE GREAT DEAL"

Editor, Constitution: In behalf of greatest living man we have ever known, President Franklin D. Roosevelt, the New Deal should be given the name "The Great Deal," for the New Deal has proven to be the greatest deal in behalf of Americans and suffering humanity ever known, and should go down in history as the "Great Deal" for Americans. There are a few appeasers who talk against the New Deal or the great deal. Those same appeasers would talk against any kind of deal, except they be the boss of said deal. No, I do not hold one of many jobs given by the great efforts of President Roosevelt. I was one of first to receive cut in pay when President Roosevelt cut the World War veterans' pay to help other suffering humanity. I am a disabled World War veteran, and if it were not for the friends who give me shirts, ties, socks and many other things as birthday and Christmas presents, I am afraid it would be hard for me to find a change of clothes. Yet I still say President Franklin D. Roosevelt is the greatest living man we have ever known and his great efforts can never die. Thanks for the Great Deal. Very respectfully,

Tech Draws Alabama, Georgia Gets Bye in First Round of Meet

BY JACK TROY

Oldest Owner Although his hair has turned to silver and there is other evidence pointing toward the fact that he is a mature individual, few people, even among his closest associates, realize Tom Watkins was the oldest club owner in the Southern League.

But he was. He took over at Memphis a year before Bob Allen, now of Knoxville, moved in at Nashville.

Now, after 27 years as owner of Memphis, Watkins has retired, and I assure you it won't seem quite the same league to other directors.

Maybe Tom Watkins was not the greatest diplomat with regard to customers the game has known, but among his associates he was regarded as a hail-fellow and there is, sincere regret in the knowledge that he is through.

Tom Watkins is the kind of fellow who WOULD kick a football back over his head—and over a fence—in a college football game. He did it once when Tennessee was playing Cincinnati U. He was standing behind his own goal line trying to kick the Vols out of danger.

And maybe he was a bit brash to a customer now and then, for, as everyone knows, there was some reason other than the team itself which kept fans from attending games in Memphis. The team usually was high up in the race.

But despite all else, the league has not known many kinder men. He would not hesitate to give you his shirt—if he had six more like it. There was a lot of bluff and bluster about old Tom, but underneath he was royal blue.

One year during a directors' meeting a writer standing outside the room heard a crash and tinkling of glass, as if a window had been broken. Soon Watkins and Joe Engel came out of the meeting. They had been asked out by President John D. Martin.

Engel once staged a house-and-lot night and he insisted Memphis "welched" on its part of the bargain. Engel never could get any satisfaction—until the slight altercation at the meeting.

Eye-witnesses said it was the worst fight since Carnera fought Baer.

Now We'll Know Tom Watkins has been blamed all these years for the poor attendance at Russwood Park. The Chicks didn't draw when they were pennant-bound.

Now there will be a chance to know for sure about Memphis—whether it was Tom Watkins or it's just naturally a poor sports town. Or, perhaps, somebody else in the organization.

If the fans don't turn out now they will justify more than one suspicion—which is that most Tennessee towns are alike in sports.

For years Tennessee football writers have endeavored to determine where Nashville fans go on Saturday afternoons. (Editor's note: Chattanooga baseball writers have given up trying.)

Business has picked up in baseball at Nashville's Dell, however, since Larry Gilbert took charge.

And now, as said, we'll really find out about Memphis. The citizens do not have a fall guy or an excuse now. It is strictly up to them.

Doc Prothro The naming of Doc Prothro as a Chick director is interesting. Doc used to manage the team in the not so long ago, and there are insistent rumors the Phillies will call on the National League for help.

When Doc was piloting Memphis the Chickasaws drew rather well. Just as Little Rock did when he had the Travelers. Doc's job at Philadelphia is hopeless. The talent just isn't there. And the future's none too bright.

So it is possible that Doc may one day return to Memphis, perhaps as a director, more likely as manager, or maybe both.

The groundwork has been laid in naming him a director.

Kid Gets On Since we are on the subject of baseball, I might mention it was a bit startling, in going through the old Constitution files recently, to discover that Norman Elberfeld, the Tobasco Kid, was 45 years old when he managed Chattanooga in 1917.

The Kid had just started out that season on his 25th year of professional baseball. He had had more fights than Ty Cobb has ever dreamed of.

Come April, Kid Elberfeld will be 70 years old. He is still active. Every now and then you hear about the little man taking part in a baseball school somewhere.

The Kid won a pennant for Little Rock in 1920. It was the first and last one Little Rock had until Doc Prothro came along.

Anyway, just to show how tricky the Kid was, he figured out a way to reduce harder hitting clubs to the Pebbles' level. The Kid had a good club, with a fine pitching staff, but it was short on hitting.

So the Kid further deadened a dead ball through freezing. He swears it was a vital factor in Little Rock winning the pennant.

In 1918, when the Southern League broke up in June because of the last world war, New Orleans and Little Rock turned down strong invitations to become permanent members of the Texas League.

Conn To Fight Hughes Thursday

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.—(AP)—Billy Conn and Lew Jenkins, light-heavy and lightweight champion, respectively, spotlight this week's national boxing program.

Jenkins takes on Lou Ambers, of Herkimer, N. Y., the man from whom he won the title. They meet in a 10-round over-weight bout at Madison Square Garden Friday. A victory for either gladiator may bring a welterweight title match with Champion Fritzie Zivic.

Conn, tuning up for his title shot at Joe Louis, meets Ira Hughes, heavyweight from Pittsburgh, in a 10-rounder at Clarksburg, W. Va., Thursday.

Big Bim Rules Heavy Choice In Widener Cup

Observers Say Colt Will Outclass Rest of Hialeah Field.

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 23.—(AP)—Some of the nation's finest thoroughbreds will run in the $50,000 Widener Cup race at Hialeah Park Saturday, but most observers were agreed today that Colonel E. R. Bradley's Bimelich may make the rest of the field look like a bunch of platers.

Until Wednesday, the Widener was regarded as a wide-open affair. Bimelich was rated about even with such horses as Greentree Stable's Hash, conqueror of Challedon in the last Narragansett Special; Mrs. Marie Evans' Shot Put, the 1940 distance champion; and Le Mar Stock Farm's Many Stings, last year's Widener winner. But Bimelich ran yesterday against Hash and Shot Put and beat them both rather easily. Jockey Don Meade kept the big, handsome "Bim" under wraps virtually all the way, letting him out just a little when Hash made his bid in the stretch. Hash was beaten a short length and Shot Put was five lengths back in third place.

Bimelich's triumph, which established him as an overwhelming favorite for the Widener, shared the day's spotlight at Hialeah with the thrilling victory scored by King Ranch's Dispose in the $20,000 added Flamingo Stakes.

Nick-named the "Communist Colt" because he was brought to Hialeah from Columbia, S. C., on the eve of each of his two victories, the Bahamas Handicap and the Flamingo, Dispose beat Coldstream Stable's Curious Coin a short head.

Dispose took an early lead and hung on grimly to stave off a closing rush by Curious Coin. Greentree Stable's The Rhymer was third, four lengths back.

The race boosted the Kentucky Derby stock of Dispose considerably. At the same time, Warren Wright's Whirlaway, previous Derby winter book favorite, became a question mark when he popped a splint just before the race and had to be withdrawn from the Flamingo.

Challedon Lightly Regarded Saturday

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Feb. 23.—(AP)—Unimpressed by his showing in the $100,000 San Antonio purse event, turf observers doubt Challedon will be a serious factor in next Saturday's big $100,000 Santa Anita Handicap.

W. L. Brann's Pride of Maryland breezed through a light workout today, indicating he came through without mishap in yesterday's race in which he finished seventh behind the winner, Charles S. Howard's Mioland in a field of 11.

Some veteran horsemen even went so far as to express belief Challedon might be declared out of next Saturday's colorful classic, although Brann and Trainer L. L. Whitehall still cling to hope that they might be able to get their horse ready in time.

Bees Rained Out Of First Workout

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, Feb. 23.—(AP)—Driving rain today canceled the opening Boston Bee pre-season baseball practice session and Manager Casey Stengel looked worriedly at weather reports, which indicated that tomorrow's also might be washed out.

The storm, which has been raging for the past few days, is a double handicap for the Bees. Not only is the practice being delayed, but the rain is holding up completion of work on the grounds where the team will go through the preliminary routine.

The entire advance delegation of players was on hand today with the exception of Johnny Cooney, 39-year-old player-coach, who is recuperating from an influenza attack at his Florida home.

Yankees Report For Spring Work

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Feb. 23.—(AP)—A squad of 24 pitchers, catchers, infielders and outfielders, the largest opening-day squad which ever assembled under Manager Joe McCarthy, gathered here today to begin the New York Yankees' spring training season. Workouts start tomorrow on Miller Huggins' field under the usual schedule of one workout a day, starting at 11 a. m., and continuing until the athletes are tired.

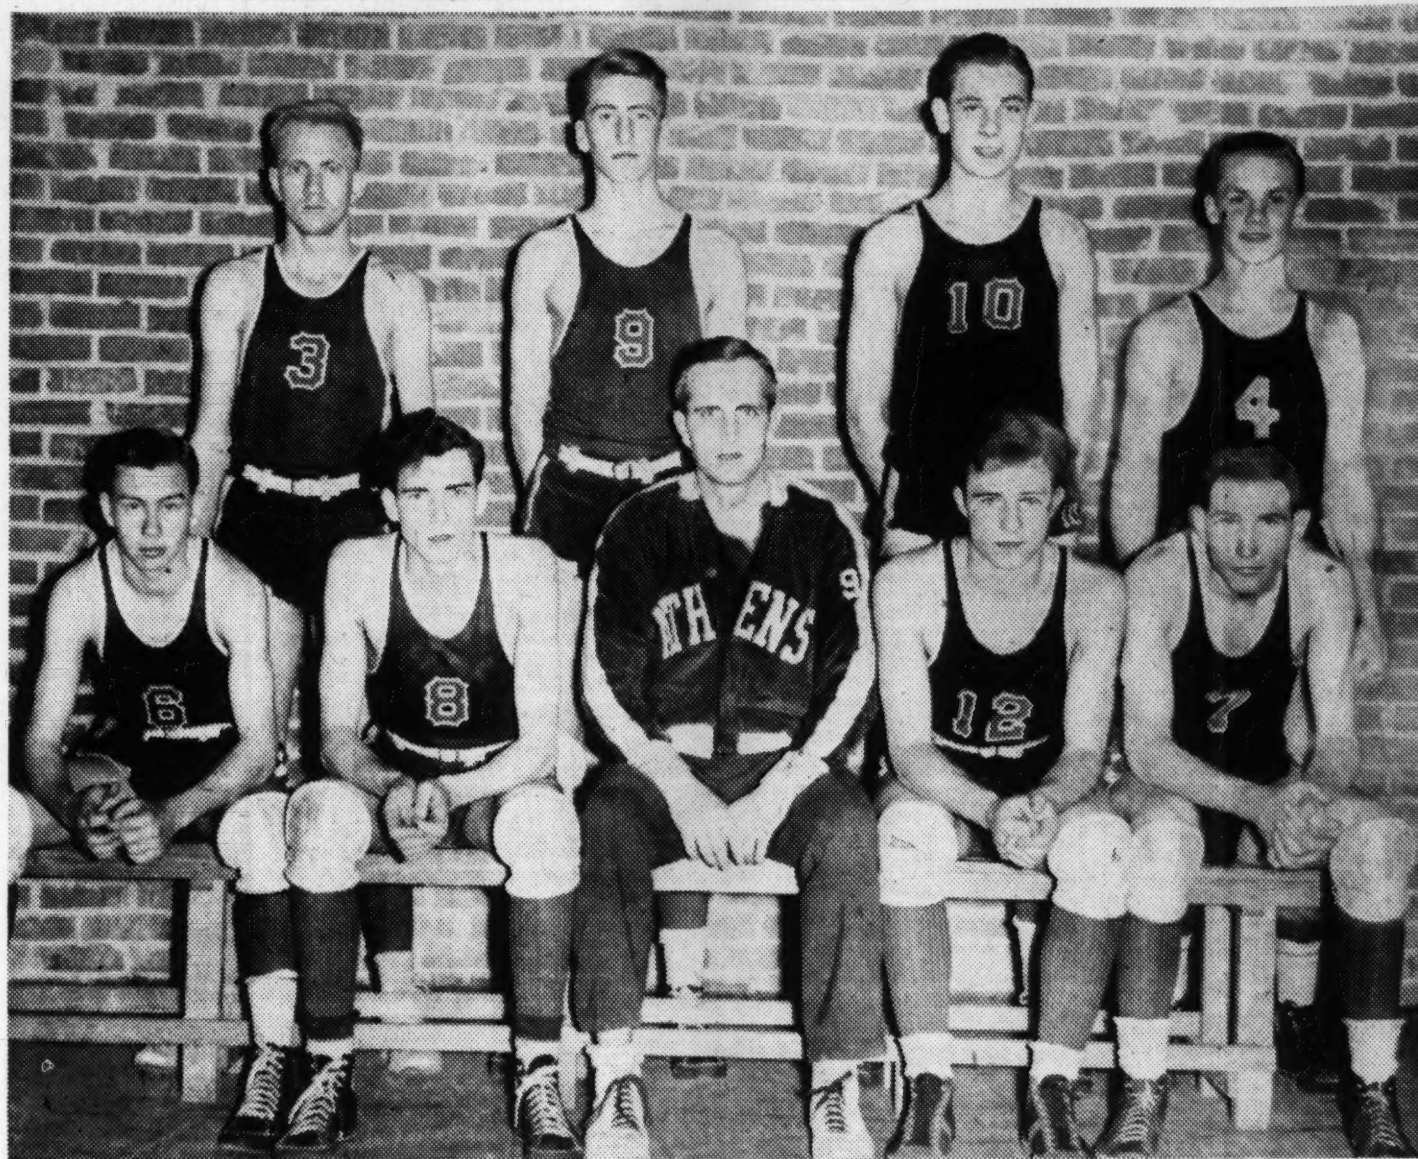

Among those missing were Charley Ruffing, right-handed mound ace, and Bill Dickey, first-string catcher. Neither has signed his 1941 contract.

Miss Betz Takes Miami Golf Title

CORAL GABLES, Fla., Feb. 23.—(UP)—Pauline Betz, Rollins College tennis star, today won the Miami Biltmore women's round-robin tournament with eight straight victories.

Dorothy Bundy, another Rollins College player, won five straight games and ended in second place with seven victories.

Boris Hart, Miami; Mrs. Marta Barnett Andrade, Coral Gables; and Katherine Winthrop, Boston, tied for third with four wins and four defeats.

Fans Looking To Greenberg For Big Reply

Await Hank's Return From Hawaii To Discuss Draft Case.

DETROIT, Feb. 23.—(AP)—In a manner of speaking, Hank Greenberg is coming up with the bases full on Tuesday, and what he does about it might turn out to be as potent, in effect, as any of his home-run smashes.

Since the situation appears full of doubt regarding Home-Run Hank's attitude toward the Army draft, the ace slugger of the Detroit Tigers doubtlessly will be asked to clear up matters when he steps off his ship in San Francisco.

Ever since Thursday night, when reports reached print that Greenberg was seeking "occupational deferment" from the draft as a "necessary man," there has been much ado locally. Members of Hank's own local draft board disagree. The perplexity of baseball fans is probably immeasurable.

NO ANSWER YET.

On Tuesday the big fellow, believed the highest salaried ball player in the organized game at a reputed $36,000 a year, disembarks on these shores after a vacation on those shores after a vacation in Hawaii. He was on shipboard when the reports first were heard, and no one has been able to reach him for his side of it.

Therefore, Hank, who has done it often enough on the ball field, can be the one to end an extended period of suspense.

Certainly the baseball world will be hanging on his words. Particularly baseball-loving Detroit. The "Greenberg story" has been doing pretty well for itself here in front-page competition with the wars overseas and national affairs.

Over the weekend it developed that the members of local Draft Board No. 23, to which Hank reports, were in disagreement over the Tiger star's memoranda as to his draft status.

Originally, Chairman Ben O. Shepherd had denied that Greenberg had asked deferment on any grounds. Subsequently, however, a fellow member, Floyd T. Smith, took an opposite view.

Smith said that "Greenberg, in his questionnaire, did ask to be deferred to Class 2 and he also gave his reasons for deferment."

AGREED ON SILENCE. "The facts are definitely that there is a request for deferment to Class 2," Smith said. "Greenberg is within his rights in requesting it and the board must act upon it."

Smith said that board members had talked over Greenberg's case and agreed to keep silent about it until "final action" had been taken.

"However," Smith said, "when I find a statement in the case in the newspapers coming out of our board, a statement that I know is erroneous, I feel that it is within my province to correct that statement."

The third board member, Ralph J. Norton, tacitly approved Smith's remarks with the comment: "Whatever Mr. Smith says about the case is all right with me."

Smith said he was unable to recall Greenberg's exact words in his deferment request and therefore would not attempt to repeat them.

Chairman Shepherd declined to discuss the case any further.

Celtics Beat Police; Challenged by Pros

Sewell Girls Nose Out Sears To Win the State Championship at Sports Arena.

By THAD HOLT.

The Original Celtics won their 56th straight basketball game at Warren Sports arena Sunday afternoon, turning back a powerful Police Cracker five with dazzling passing and shooting in the second half to triumph, 52-46.

L. C. Warren, Atlanta sportsman, received a wire while the rough-house contest was in progress which read: "Would the fans of the south like to see the Celtics beaten? We licked 'em once this year; we can do it again. Seems to us the people in Dixie ought quit supporting the Celts unless they play some real opponents down there. Signed, Kautsky's All-Americans from Indianapolis, Ind."

Tom Humphreys, astute manager of the Celtics, reddened a bit and sputtered: "Well, you see, we'd like to play Kautsky's, but we're booked up. They have a real good team. We beat 'em 70-69 in five extra minutes yesterday in a methodical fashion and then they lucked us out, before we started our present tour. I don't think we can crowd another game into our schedule."

FANS WANT BATTLE. A number of Atlanta fans who admire the Celtics as great stars likewise have expressed an eagerness to see Bobby McDermott and company meet a team of equal ability. They watched the Celtics cut down a powerful Cracker team in a methodical fashion yesterday and would like to know what a ball club has to have to beat the Houdinis of the hardwood.

Captain Neal Ellis' team was at its best. Recent winners of the state tournament, the Crackers put a tall, accomplished team with lots of spirit on the floor. For a half, for nearly three quarters, the Police held their ground. But the Celtics broke loose with undeniable passing and shooting to widen their lead sufficiently to enable them to clown and grandstand in the closing period.

CRACKERS LEAD. The Crackers led, 9-7, at the first quarter and left the floor at half-time with a 21-20 advantage. Unimpressed, the champs put on their scheduled clinic and got a big hand for their fine show.

Bobby McDermott, who scored 18 points for high honors although he was a bit off on his long shots, found the range in the second half and it wasn't long until the tide turned for keeps.

Virlyn Moore, with 12 points, and Bo Johnston with 10 points, led Police scoring, while Ed Copeland, Gene Warlick and Garrison turned in floor and defensive performances that made the Celts work for their points.

SEWELL COMES THROUGH. Sewell Service girls won the state championship by nosing out Sears-Roebuck, 25-24. The game was held over from the state tournament which ended last Monday.

Sara Killian, Sewell ace, was held to a pair of points by Sarah Chance, of the losers, but Cora Aycock shot 10 to give the new champions a thrilling game. Sears was behind, 22-16, after the third quarter and almost overtook Sewell with their closing rush.

Techwood Merchants beat Young Men's Syrian Association, 34-27, in the opener.

Bill Curry's weightlifting made many wives ashamed of their husbands.

National Opens With 46 Dogs In Title Races

One of Largest Fields in History Competing at Grand Junction.

GRAND JUNCTION, Tenn., Feb. 23.—(AP)—The cream of the bird dog world will go on display here tomorrow as the opening rounds of the National Field Trials get under way over the vast wooded fields of the Hobart Ames plantation.

Forty-six entries, all of them winners of major field trial tests, are down for the colorful meet—oldest of all field trials. Although several dogs probably will be scratched before the first brace is put down, the 1941 field is expected to be the largest in years.

Last year's winner, Lester's Enjo Wahoo, owned by Dr. B. S. Lester, of Birmingham, Ala., is among the entries.

The state's inaugural was run in 1896 at West Point, Miss. Since that time, 22 setters and 21 pointers have won the coveted title. Only six setters are entered in this year's meet.

The dogs run three-hour heats over courses eight miles long.

Sons of Pericles Open Tournament

Six teams from South Carolina and Georgia will invade Atlanta today for the eighth annual basketball tournament of the Order of the Sons of Pericles, Junior Order of the American Hellenic Educational Progressive Association.

Savannah, defending champions, will have their hands full coping with the much improved teams of Atlanta, Birmingham, Charleston, Greenville, S. C., Dalton, S. C., and Spartanburg, South Carolina.

The games will start promptly at 2 p. m. at the Y. M. C. A. courts. The finals will be held Tuesday afternoon beginning at 3 o'clock.

Pairings will be posted before game time this afternoon.

Foursome Takes Dogfight With 112

Sixteen foursomes participated in the weekly dogfight tournament Sunday afternoon at East Lake. The winning foursome had a score of 112. They were Paul Grigsby, J. H. Layman, D. J. Evans and D. C. Lacy.

Second at 113 were S. E. Gill, George Fogg, C. DeNormandie and E. E. Lyons.

Two foursomes were next with a score of 117. They were E. A. Burtzloff, F. W. Rade, L. V. Sabour, R. P. Fraser and A. M. Perkinson. Dr. J. R. Mitchell, R. R. Garrison and H. H. Arnold were next with a score of 118. They were J. J. McGeary, Dr. H. H. Jack Sargent, Elgin Poole and Dr. H. W. Ridley. Dr. A. O. Lynch, L. W. Hill and Buck Thomas were next with a score of 119.

J. B. McConnell, H. S. Roberts, W. D. Owen and W. Lawson had 119's. In last place with a score of 120 were Alan Yates, S. M. Haw, N. S. Morgan and Jack Feagin.

Armand May Wins At Hollywood Beach

HOLLYWOOD BEACH, Fla., Feb. 23.—Armand May, of Atlanta, won the second division championship in the annual Hollywood Beach Hotel golf tournament finals at Hollywood Country Club. Matched against Edward Sulzberger, of New York, May was winner, 3 and 2.

Today's results broke the tie of the first finals play between the two golfers.

Wildcats, Vols, 'Bama, Florida Seeded Teams

Auburn and Tulane Also Will Not Have To Play Thursday.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Feb. 23.—(AP)—Kentucky, Tennessee, Florida and Alabama basketball teams were seeded in that order today for the annual Southeastern Conference tournament beginning at Louisville next Thursday. Votes of the 12 loop coaches decided the seeding.

The favored Kentucky, 1940 champion, and Tennessee, its bitter and highly-rated rival, would meet only in the finals—provided they hurdle other opposition.

Third-seeded Florida, possibly tourney "dark horse" which was placed in the same bracket with Tennessee, drew a first-round bye. Other free rides in the quarter-finals were given Georgia, Auburn and Tulane.

The drawings were made at the University of Kentucky gymnasium by the conference tournament committee, which also selected a third tourney official—Fred Walters, of Laurel, Miss. Bowser Chest, of Nashville, and Herman Jackson, of Murfreesboro, Tenn., are the other two. Only two referees, however, will work each game.

Thursday afternoon games in the upper bracket pit L. S. U. against Vanderbilt, which entered the tourney lists only today, and Tennessee against Mississippi State. In the lower bracket tilts that night, Alabama takes on Georgia Tech and Kentucky plays Mississippi.

On Friday afternoon, Florida meets the winner of the L. S. U.-Vandy game, while Georgia plays the winner of the Tennessee-Mississippi State affair. Friday night Auburn meets the Alabama-Tech winner and Tulane plays the Kentucky-Ole Miss champ.

The semi-finals will be played Saturday afternoon and the championship game Saturday night, starting at 8:30 p. m. (CST). All games are to be played in Louisville's Jefferson county armory.

The drawing was satisfactory to Adolph Rupp, Kentucky coach, who said "I don't see how it could have been any better. If we win, we will have to play all the tough ones anyway."

Amateur Nines In Federation Meet Tonight

All teams within a radius of 50 miles of Atlanta which plan to enter amateur baseball leagues this year should be represented tonight at 7 o'clock at the Atlanta Amateur Baseball Federation meeting at Reeder and McGaughey Sporting Goods Company at 52 North 28th street.

The 10 six-club leagues which will be formed this year under the sponsorship of the National Amateur Baseball Federation and the American Baseball Congress will be the only ones eligible to compete in the annual city tournament sponsored by the Atlanta association.

The winner of the city meet will again represent the state in the national tourney. The runner-up has been representative of the state in the mid-south meet, but the local association has been trying with the idea of letting the Sunday League winner go to that meet. Discussion will be in order on that tonight.

Some 30 teams have already entered the Atlanta association's leagues, and the Textile League personnel is already set.

Greg Rice Given Memorial Trophy

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.—(AP)—Greg Rice, the record-smashing distance runner who says he never would have become a track star if there had been a baseball team in Missoula, Mont., when he was a boy, today received the James E. Sullivan memorial trophy.

The trophy is awarded each year by the Amateur Athletic Union to the athlete who "by his performance, example and influence has done the most during the year to advance the cause of sportsmanship."

Tarheels Meet Duke Thursday In First Round

North Carolina Favored To Cop Southern Conference Tourney.

RALEIGH, N. C., Feb. 23.—(AP) The University of North Carolina's top-seeded White Phantoms and Duke's Blue Devils, who handed the Tarheels their only conference defeat in regular season play, will meet Thursday night at 9:20 in the first round of the Southern Conference basketball tourney.

In the other night game Virginia Military Institute and Washington and Lee will be pitted in a formal varsity athletic contest for the first time in some 35 years, tourney committee men said. Athletic relations were broken between the two schools due to riots and disorders arising from their keen rivalry back in 1905.

The first-round afternoon games will send second-seeded South Carolina against Richmond at 3 o'clock and third-seeded William and Mary against Wake Forest at 4:20.

NO TROUBLE. Members of the conference basketball committee had no trouble in making North Carolina the favorite due to its season's record of 14 wins and one loss. They drew between South Carolina and William and Mary for the second spot, as each had a season record of eight wins and three losses, and North Carolina drew the No. 2 spot. That put William and Mary third and Washington and Lee, with nine wins and four losses, in the fourth rating.

The committee did not decide the order of the Friday night games, at 8 and 9:20, but the bracketing shows that the Duke-North Carolina winner will meet the William and Mary-Wake Forest victor, with the winner of the South Carolina-Richmond contest facing the winner of the unusual Generals-Cadets scrap.

The championship game will be played Saturday night. It appeared almost certain a North Carolina team would be in the finals, as the three entries from this state were all grouped in the upper bracket along with William and Mary.

SNEAD HAS EVERYTHING BUT TITLES

GLEN ARVEN COUNTRY CLUB, THOMASVILLE, Ga., Feb. 23. Two guys who are not here for the tournament furnished the material for more conversation than a man would attempt to shake a stick at. Paul Runyan, the little man with the odd but telling swing, and Sagn Sneed are the gentlemen in question.

Runyan started the battle above the tablecloths with a statement in New York. Sneed was the subject of the statement. Runyan, it seems, is a cockle-burr and bounced up with the assertion that Sneed is the greatest living golfer.

That takes in a lot of territory—too much, most of the pros will agree. So it was quite natural when Fredrick Corcoran, Albert Riley, the genial little gent who writes sports here; Lawson Little and this thicket thumper got together that the subject was based on two missing golfers.

All the issues were brought up—the old ones being gone over in search for new angles on the situation. Little had the main answer. He agreed with Runyan's statement about Sneed's swing being the best. He also agreed on the shot-making ability of Sneed, which he termed the greatest among today's players.

"Still, he isn't a champion," Little said. "And as far as comparing him with Jones I concerned, think of this. Jones is tired at 28 with 13 major titles. Sneed is at that age right now and he hasn't a single National or British title."

"Did you ever think of that?" Sneed has everything but a grand record as far as National and

Auto Plunges In Mississippi, Killing Seven

Officers Believe Another Was Victim; River Is Being Dragged.

PRAIRIE DU CHIEN, Wis., Feb. 23.—(AP)—The bodies of three girls and four boys, all from Iowa, were found today in an automobile submerged in 15 feet of water about 100 feet from the shore of the Mississippi river.

Police dragged the river tonight searching for the body of Clarence Sanderson, about 25, also of Elton. A hat, found floating on an ice cake, was identified as belonging to him. Sanderson's parents said that he had not come home last night.

The dead, ranging in age from 17 to 20 years, were identified as Vera Canoe, Helen O'Brien and Marguerite McMillen, all of Rossville, Iowa, and Helmer Bakke, Laverne Bakke, Vernon Swenson and Norval Rowe, all of Iowa.

Authorities began a search for the car when a toll bridge keeper reported that a ticket for the car had been purchased but had not been used, although several hours had elapsed.

Under Sheriff Duke Zeit testified before a coroner's inquest, which was called immediately, that the victims apparently visited several places of entertainment during the evening and at about 2 a. m. bought the toll bridge ticket for the return home.

FIVE PERSONS KILLED AT GRADE CROSSING. ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Feb. 23.—(AP)—Five persons were killed today at suburban Pinellas Park when a northbound A. C. L. passenger train struck a light truck at a grade crossing.

The dead were identified by Justice of the Peace John T. Fisher and Mr. and Mrs. K. R. McConnell, of St. Petersburg, and their three small children.

The Gentleman--

From Toombs... From Coweta... From Camden...

Rep. T. F. Fuller, of Toombs. Rep. J. B. Davis, of Coweta. Sen. Homer Edenfield, of Camden.

A strong backer of a better and more influential welfare department is Representative T. F. Fuller, of Lyons, Toombs county. He is also in favor of nine months' school for the entire state. The seven months' plan may have its assets, he concedes, but for him it's the nine-month school year. He's a dirt farmer, a promoter of civic organizations of Toombs county. He helped build the school of his community from a three-member faculty to one of 14 members. His pet bill is one to reorganize the welfare department, a sort of back-up for the governor.

A lawyer, bachelor and second-term in the house of representatives, J. B. Davis, of Newnan, Coweta county, is a sportsman who is interested in better government and efficiency among the lawmakers and law enforcers of the state. He claims that he's "a countryman by rearing" and he is one of the co-authors of the pure seed law. He is interested in a program for the Junior Chamber of Commerce and is pushing such a program wholeheartedly.

Senator Homer Edenfield, of the fourth district, Kingsland, Camden county, served as mayor of Kingsland for 10 years, and has been an automobile dealer in that city for more than 17 years. He claims his hobby is "hard work." He is a World War veteran who served in the United States Navy in 1917 and 1918. He is the senate floor leader and vice chairman of the Senate Rules Committee. A long-time politician, a civic leader, Senator Edenfield is "driving hard" for his people and for his convictions.

ley has been named to select a successor. Miss Atwill Walden, secretary, will be in charge of the office, it is revealed by President L. M. Lipsey.

Yancey Bros. Road-Building Equipment Being Used on Big Job

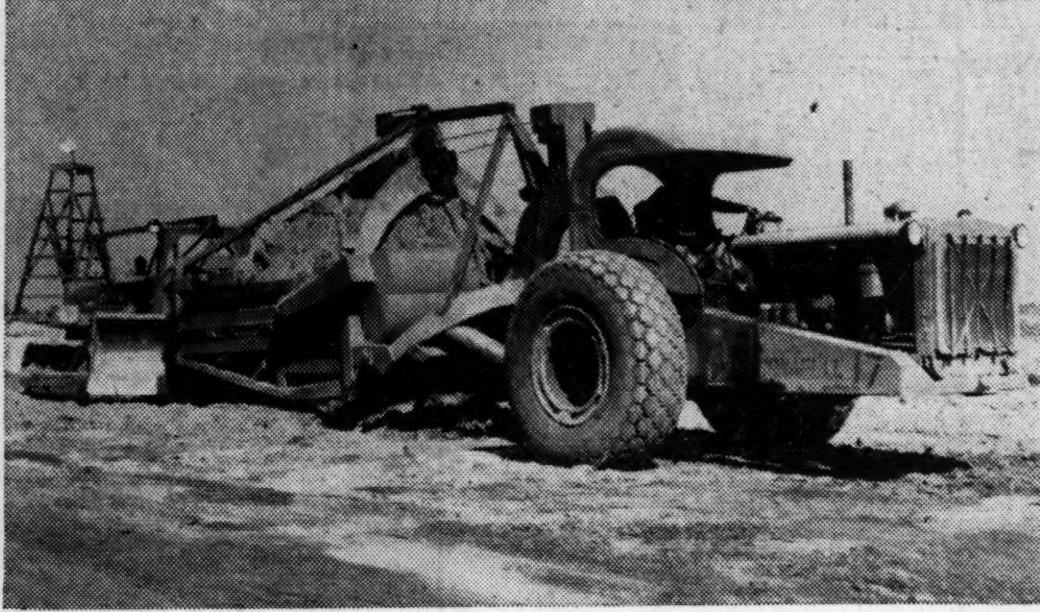

1,500,000 Yards of Dirt Being Moved

Equipment Used at Conley, Ga., and Camp Gordon.

Supplying practically all the road building, scraping and tractor machinery now in use on the tremendously large government job being executed at Conley, Ga., Yancey Brothers, Inc., the well-known road-building machinery concern, can well say that their part in this big federal job is one of the most important in the development.

At Conley, the government is building an Army supply depot to furnish all supplies for the southern area. It is a development covering 1,400 acres, and is being built at a cost of about $10,000,000. It is declared to be—or will be when finished—the largest United States supply depot used anywhere by Uncle Sam.

The work of grading and leveling off the hundreds of acres for the erection of buildings, and the preparation of roadways for rail-road trackage for connection with the Southern and Central of Georgia

MOVING DIRT—Here is shown the big dirt-mover being used at the big army supply depot being erected at Conley, Ga. The machines shown is a caterpillar tractor pushing a LeTourneau Tournapull, this and practically all other grading equipment being furnished by Yancey Bros., Inc., road-building machinery company of Atlanta.

Railways, is one of the largest contracts of its kind ever to be awarded in the south. In all, something like 1,600,000 yards of dirt has to be moved, and of this amount some 200,000 yards is estimated to be solid rock. Ninety per cent of the equipment for moving this dirt and for other grading purposes is being supplied by Yancey Brothers, of Atlanta.

Contractors who have the job in hand are the Hardaway Contracting Company, of Columbus, Ga., and the E. M. Beckman Company, of Perry, Ga. Each of these contractors have the work of moving about 800,000 yards of dirt, doing the grading for the entrance of the railroads and for grading for other purposes.

In addition to the Conley jobs these contractors also have the contract for the big hospital and air base at Camp Gordon. The equipment used there is 100 per cent furnished by Yancey Brothers, Inc., and consists of Caterpillar tractors, LeTourneau scrapers and Tournapulls, which is a combination of rubber tire tractor and scraper, the same type of equipment as is being used at Conley. Yancey Brothers are to be congratulated on furnishing the equipment for these big government jobs. For years they have been recognized as among the outstanding road-building machinery dealers in the south. Last year this concern led all LeTourneau distributors in the world on sales.

Majority of British Still Get Their Sleep Despite Air Raids

Queried on Thoughts After Hearing of Heavy Attacks by Hitler's Planes, People Reveal This Reaction: 'Let's Bomb Him Back.'

By DR. GEORGE GALLUP,
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

PRINCETON, N. J., Feb. 23.—A cross-current study of the life of wartime Britain—conducted by the British Institute of Public Opinion—shows that while many Britons are sleeping less than they did before the war, a majority have managed to get their accustomed seven, eight or nine hours per night despite air raids, extra duties and wartime insomnia.

Largest dislocation in the hours of sleep have come in London and the midlands, where Nazi bombing activities have sent millions nightly to bomb shelters.

In many provincial areas, however, there has been comparatively little loss of sleep. Indeed, the reduced night life of many towns and cities has probably sent some Britons to their bunks earlier than usual.

To a cross-section of men and women in the United Kingdom as a whole the British Institute put the question: "Are you sleeping less than before the war?"

Fifty-two persons in every hundred said "no." Forty-four said "yes"—that they were sleeping less.

About four persons in every hundred said they didn't know, or had been "too busy to notice."

Before the war, British Institute surveys show, the English could be called a nation of eight-hour sleepers.

Seventy-three per cent testified shortly before the war began that they usually slept "eight hours or more."

In the latest check-up, 40 per cent said they were still getting "eight or more."

Since military observers have interpreted much of the Nazi bombing as an attempt to destroy British civilian morale—far more than as an attempt to strike at key industrial targets—the British Institute also asked:

"What are your thoughts when you hear there has been a very heavy air raid?"

Only Herr Hitler himself, probably, can decide whether the reactions are those he has been counting on.

But significantly, only one person in ten said the bombings made him want to "stop the war" in some way.

Far more common was the reaction: "Let's bomb him back."

New Steel Nets Are Built To Defend U. S. Harbors

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 23.—(AP)—New type steel mesh nets to defend American harbors from submarine and mosquito boat attack are being constructed and tested by the United States Navy in a deepwater cove on San Francisco bay.

Newsman, permitted to visit the station yesterday, were told by Commodore S. M. Haight that nets still were considered the best harbor defense.

"Cutters now being placed on submarines," he explained, "can cut through the old type net cables like match sticks. That's why we have to make nets of very fine mesh to hold them."

Wife, Ex-Wife, Children Willing McAdoo Estate

SANTA BARBARA, Cal., Feb. 23.—(AP)—The late William Gibbs McAdoo left his estate to his widow, his former wife and their children in equal shares.

An exception was a son, Francis, who asked that his father's books and papers be willed to him in lieu of a share of the estate.

The will, filed for probate yesterday, merely listed the value of the estate at more than $10,000.

Beneficiaries are McAdoo's widow, Doris; his former wife, Eleanor, a daughter of President Woodrow Wilson; and his children, William Gibbs Jr., Mrs. Harriet Platt, Mrs. Nona Taylor, Mrs. Sally Hinshaw and Mary Faith McAdoo.

Nazis Blamed For Hunger in Fallen Areas

Blockade Not Responsible for Food Shortage, U. S. Report Says.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—(AP)—Germany and not the British blockade was blamed in an official report today for critical food shortages in the Nazi-conquered nations of Norway, Denmark, Holland, Belgium and France.

An Agriculture Department report said that in an effort to make up for food deficiencies at home the Germans had drained the subjugated countries of supplies which would have supplied "somewhat better than minimum food requirements."

The report was prepared by Dr. Frederick Strauss, Agriculture Department economist, for study of defense officials. It is to be submitted to the White House early this week.

"Denmark, Norway, Holland, Belgium and France would actually be able," it said, "to feed their people, despite the British blockade, if Germany were not adjusting their agricultural economies to her own food needs and their industrial machinery and transport systems to her war effort."

The report asserted that the conclusion that the conquered nations could solve their food problems if left alone "is inescapable if one pieces together such information as is available from official American sources, from statements of various European government spokesmen and particularly from the scant rationing known to prevail in most of these countries."

Prospects of critical shortages at home are leading Germany, the report declared, to "extract from the conquered area all the food she needs for the maintenance of her war effort, disregarding the food needs of the population in these countries."

STEEL ORDERS HEAVY.

CLEVELAND, Feb. 23.—(AP)—February orders are heavier than January's for most steel plants despite the shorter month, the magazine "Steel" said today in reporting a "tight situation" in several raw materials. Some foundries are working seven days a week.

Drive To Erase Party Deficit Starts Today

Clark Howell Is Named Southern Director of Jackson Fetes.

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—(AP)—Starting tomorrow and ending with a nation-wide series of Jackson Day dinners March 29, Treasurer Richard J. Reynolds, of the Democratic national committee, today announced plans for an extensive drive for funds to wipe out the party deficit and to provide operating expenses for the current year.

As a new feature of the Jackson Day dinner program this year, Treasurer Reynolds announced the appointment of regional directors who will help arrange for the various state functions in their respective areas.

Clark Howell, editor and publisher of The Constitution, was named director of the region embracing the seven southern states of Georgia, Alabama, Florida, Tennessee, Mississippi, North and South Carolina.

Previously, national committee officials had announced Ryburn C. Clay, Atlanta banker, would serve as state chairman for the Jackson Day dinners in Georgia.

Plans for the money-raising campaign are already underway. Many of the state chairmen have already been appointed.

President Roosevelt will address the dinner in Washington, as he has in the past, and his remarks will be broadcast nationally. Speakers at the other dinners will include members of the cabinet, senators and representatives, and other prominent party leaders.

'Night Train' Lives Up To Expectations

British-Made Adventure Film Opens at the Capitol.

That picture you've heard so much about, "Night Train," which opened yesterday at the Capitol theater, came to town burdened with a lot of advance publicity hailing it as "one of the best melodramas of the year," the sort of praise that makes a reporter cock a skeptical eye.

Yet the simple truth is that this British-made adventure-spy story is quite as exciting, engrossing and full of suspense as critics in other cities have made it out to be.

Although directed by Carol Reed, the film is in the best Alfred Hitchcock tradition. This, however, should not be taken as a left-handed compliment for fashioning, in his own way, a thoroughly entertaining piece of film fare of the what's-going-to-happen-next variety.

The tale tells of the romance between a British secret agent, played by Rex Harrison, and the daughter of a Czech armament expert, this role going to dark-eyed Margaret Lockwood, remembered as the girl in "The Lady Vanishes." The romance, of course, is identical to the larger adventures framed in the plot of rescuing the girl and her father from the ill-intentioned Nazis.

Minor roles are well played, and there is humor sprinkled throughout. The film has action, impact and tremendous suspense in spots. What more could one ask? The climax is a genuine thriller.

The stage show is way above par. On the bill are Fulton and King, athletes; the Udell Sisters, singers; Aubrey Southern, another warbler of songs, and Bobby Duhart, eccentric dancer. Short subjects complete the bill.

Aid - to - Britain Is Indorsed at CIO Parley

Help 'Consistent With National Security' Is Urged.

CHICAGO, Feb. 23.—(AP)—Members of the CIO Textile Workers Union of America today adopted a resolution indorsing "all aid, short of war and consistent with our own national security, to the people of England, China and Greece."

The action was taken at the close of a two-day session of the union's midwestern conference attended by 116 delegates, representing 52 locals in 11 midwestern states.

The resolution did not specifically indorse the British aid bill. President Emil Rieve condemned attempts by states to enact model sabotage acts which he said "have only as their main purpose the abolition of the rights and liberties of labor."

"Today the question of states' rights," he said, "is a question of the past. We must now begin to think nationally and internationally."

County Home Rule May Get Consideration

Edwards Wants To Attract 'Really Good Men' to Legislature.

By The Associated Press.
Possibility of legislative consideration of home rule for counties developed yesterday with a statement by Senator H. B. Edwards, of Valdosta, that the three biggest needs in Georgia are:

1. To abolish the system of allocating certain tax revenues to specific uses.
2. To revise the qualifications for public office so as to attract "the better type of business men."
3. To eliminate "local legislation" from the calendar of the general assembly.

Most Important.

Edwards, president pro tem. of the state senate and an administration leader, said that of the three measures, probably "the most important one is to place the legislature on such a high plane that really good men will want to serve."

The senator emphasized that "I am not intending any reflection generally upon the membership of the assembly now, but I believe the people of Georgia will agree that they would benefit if the set-up were changed so every-body could represent the people."

Urges Speed.

"My idea would be to change the constitution so that assemblymen would be paid $1,000 for serving two years. Let them meet once a year. Let them get their business finished as quickly as they can—thirty days ought to be long enough."

"Get rid of those local bills and you could spend more time on state problems and still get through in thirty days or less. There's too much time-killing legislation now. And $500 a session would give a man enough to live—there wouldn't be any need for anybody to go around to commercial representatives to borrow $100 so they can stay in Atlanta for the rest of the session."

Whether you have a few suitcases or many items of furniture to be moved you can find somebody for the job by turning to classification 84—"Moving and Storage."

Tax on Alcohol Is 15 Times Pre-Dry Level

Consumption Still Below Days Before Prohibition.

CHICAGO, Feb. 23.—(AP)—Revenue from alcoholic beverage taxes is 15 times greater now than before prohibition although the consumption of such beverages is still below the preprohibition level, a survey by the Federation of Tax Administrators showed today.

The increase in revenues since prohibition to $320,000,000 in 1940 as compared with $21,000,000 in 1915 came from special sales taxes on alcoholic beverages which were not levied before prohibition.

The $320,000,000 does not include liquor store profits of the 18 states which exercise monopolies on the sales of liquor, but does include taxes levied by these states on the liquors sold through

Jewish Youth Urged To Join U. S. Military

Take Advantage of Technical Training, Kusworm Tells Them.

Sidney Kusworm, of Dayton, international treasurer of B'nai B'rith, yesterday urged Jewish youth of America to enlist in the United States Army and Navy and take advantage of the technical training offered American youth by the government.

Kusworm made his recommendations at the annual meeting of the B'nai B'rith Association of Georgia held yesterday at the Mayfair Club, telling how the association is aiding aliens to become American citizens, and about the work the association will do in the military training camps during the next 12 months.

His address followed the election of officers of the Georgia association for the ensuing year.

Judge Emanuel Lewis, of Savannah, was re-elected president of the association; Maurice Steinberg, Augusta, vice president; Herbert Waller, of Columbus, vice president; Milton Lesser, of Athens, treasurer, and Berry Rittenbaum, Atlanta, secretary.

FIVE of the largest-selling cigarettes... the brands that most of you probably smoke right now... were analyzed and compared by tests of the smoke itself. For, after all, it's what you get in the smoke that interests you... the smoke's the thing.

And over and over again the smoke of the slower-burning brand... Camel... was found to contain less nicotine.

Another triumph for slower burning! Another reason for Camel's front-line position in the cigarette field!

He smokes... as much as he likes... but note: He smokes the slower-burning cigarette that gives extra mildness and less nicotine in the smoke... Camel.

IT'S SWELL TO GET THAT EXTRA MILDNESS IN A SMOKE AS TASTY AS A CAMEL. THERE'S NOTHING LIKE A CAMEL FOR FLAVOR

AT THE ROUNDHOUSE high up on Sun Valley's famous Baldy Mountain, Dick Durrance (above) takes time out for another Camel. "That Camel flavor is something special," he says. "Never wears out its welcome—always hits the spot."

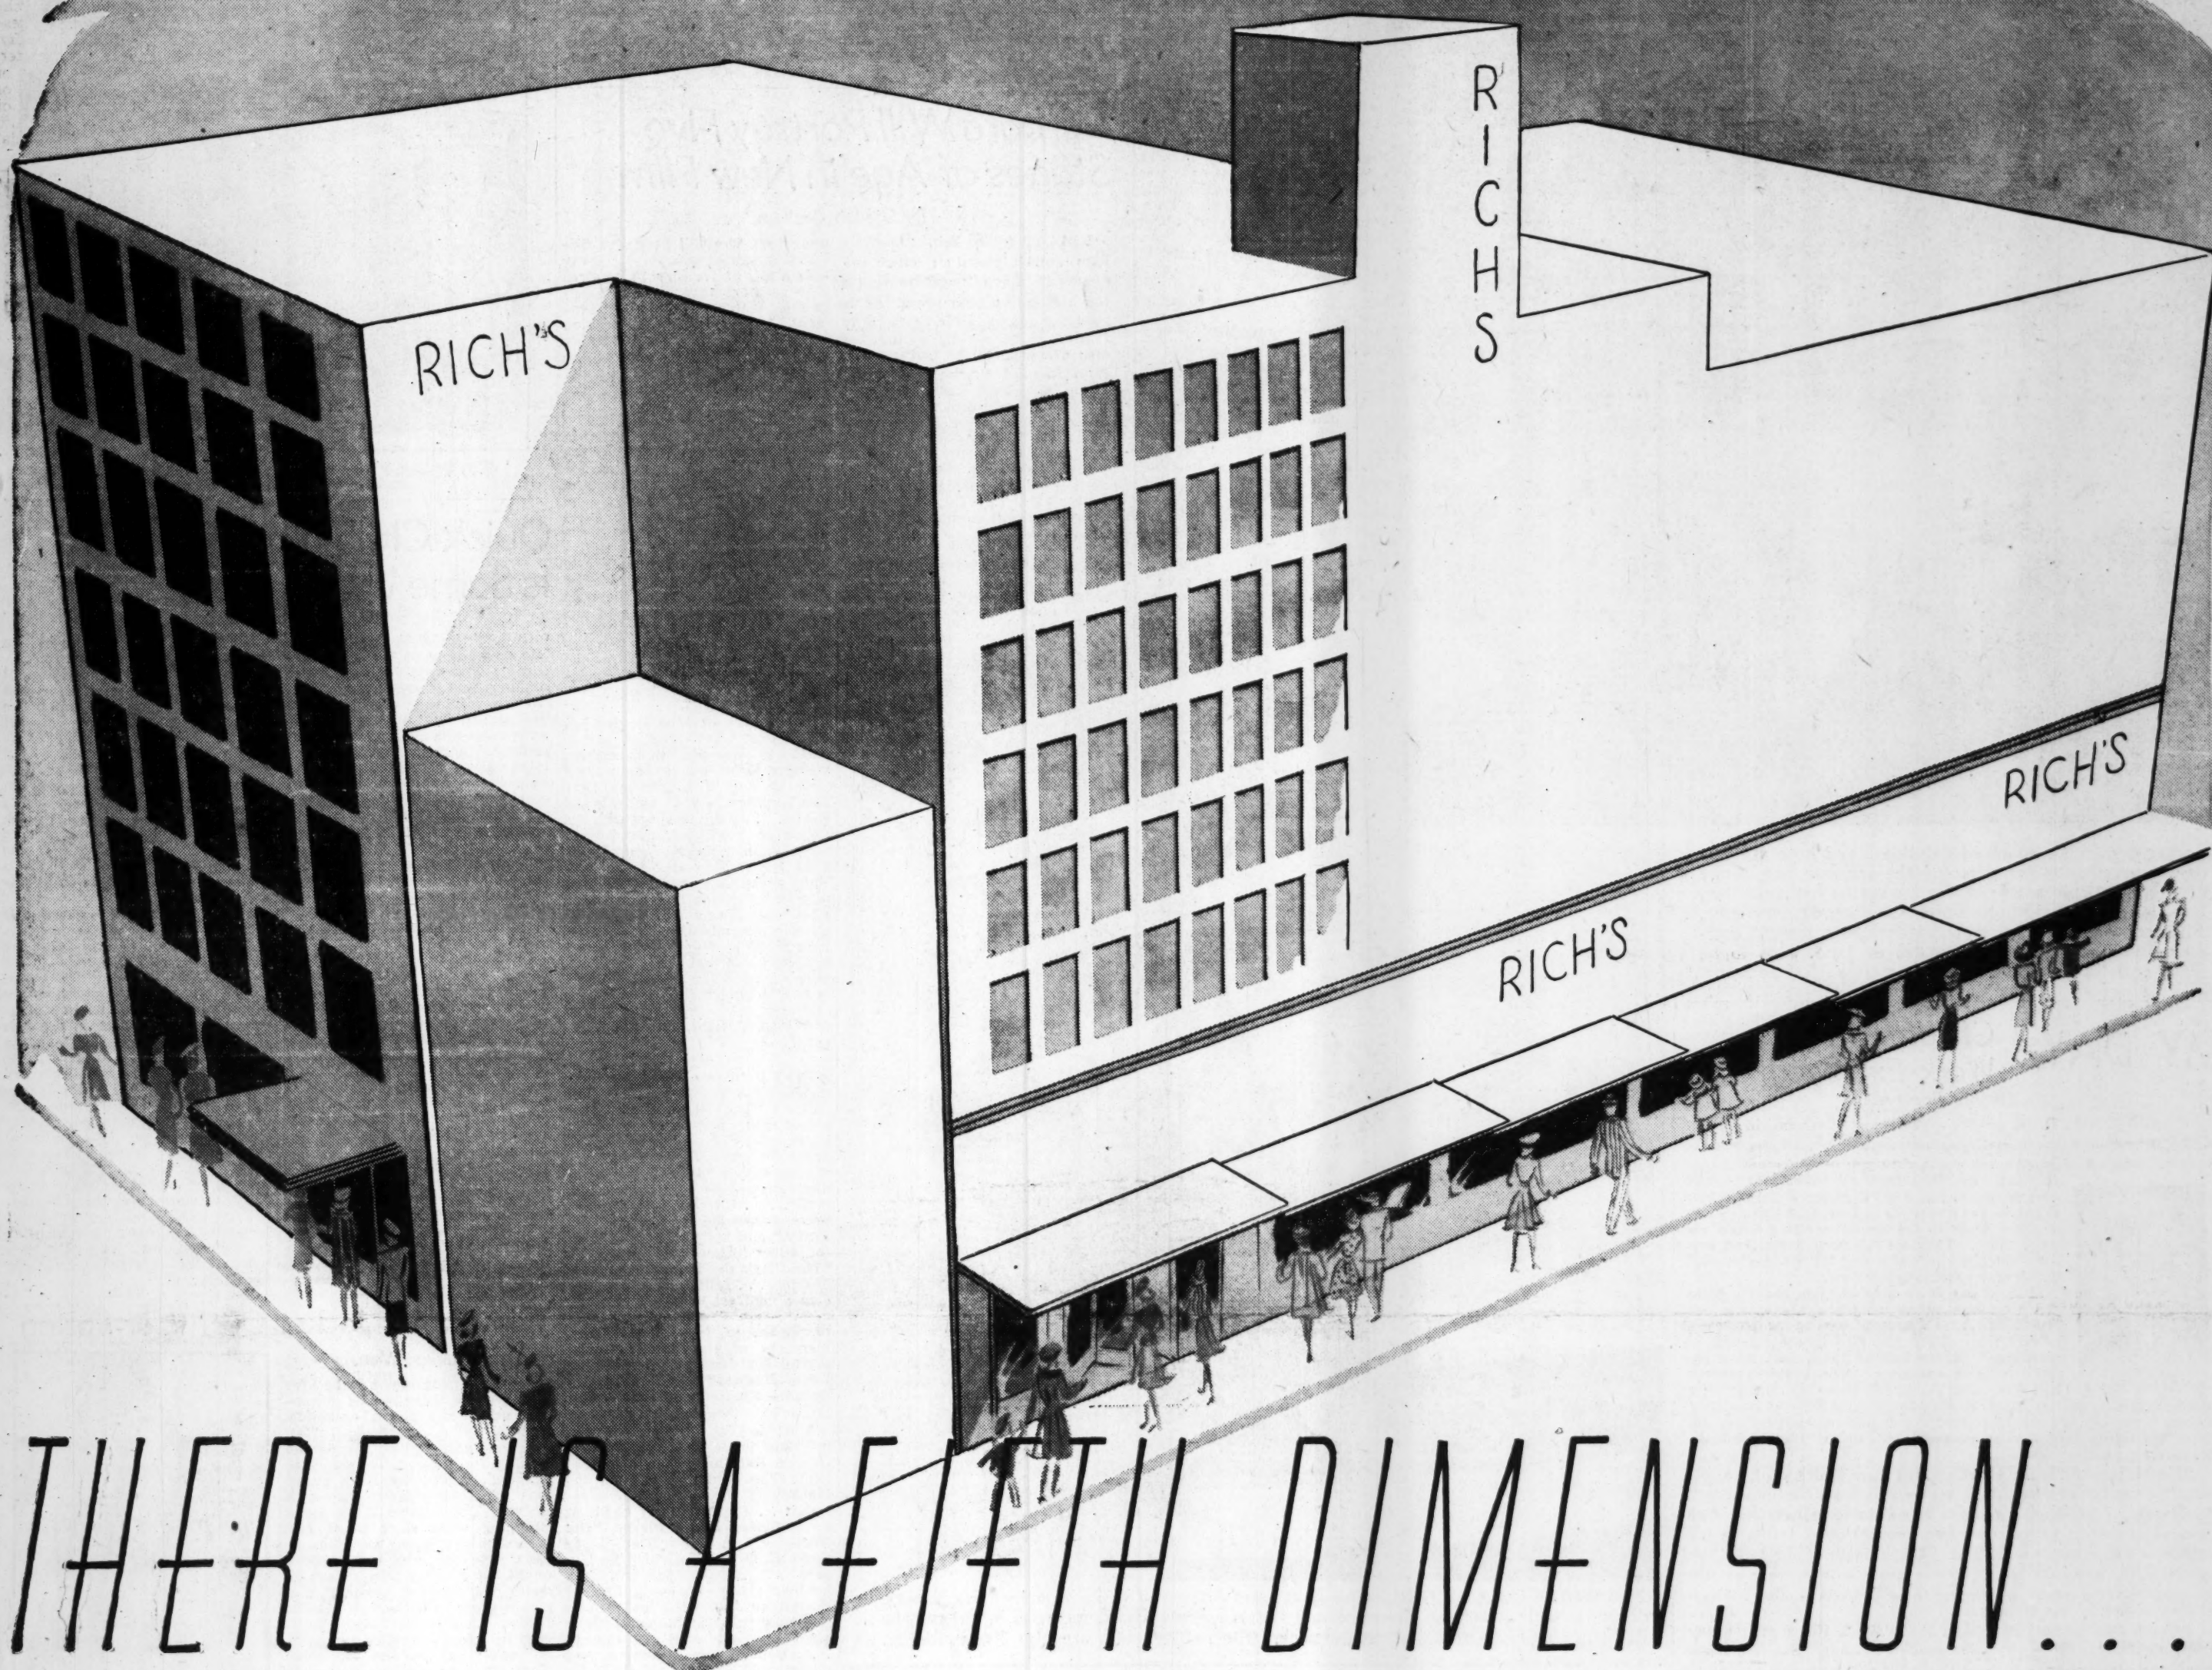

And the answer is Camel's costlier tobaccos in a matchless blend—they're slower-burning!

THERE IS A FIFTH DIMENSION...

There is a fifth dimension, not discovered by mathematics or science, by which we measure the stature of a man, or a family, or an institution. It is the width of the heart... the understanding... that which links men to each other, a family to a neighborhood, or a store to a community. By the fifth dimension we judge the sincerity of a handshake... the cordiality of an invitation... the warmth of a store's relationship to its customers... the diameter of its circle of friends.

For 73 years Rich's has stood strong and broad-hearted and near-kin in the affection of Atlanta and the South. That is why we have counted the fifth dimension along with the brick and stone and steel of this new and larger Rich's! We shall continue to be measured, not by square feet, or number of floors, but by the depth of our courtesy, the broadness of our hospitality, the circumference of our service!

MY DAY: Children's Art Work Exhibited

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Friday.—Yesterday afternoon, in Washington, I visited a house on Independence avenue, where exhibitions are held of children's art work; painting, ceramics and block printing. Children from all over the city had sent in work, but a good many children come to this house and work in their free time. Some of them were in the studio painting while we were there. They looked very happy and one little colored boy was doing "A Street Corner," which was extremely realistic.

I liked one story they told me about a little girl who was asked what she did at the art center and who answered: "They don't teach us anything. They just give us the courage to do things." Every inch of the house is used for some form of art work. The writers' project had some new pamphlets on exhibition which I had not seen before. I asked at once for several sets because they looked to me like the most simple and sensible manuals on various important subjects, such as government, how to buy a house, household training and so forth.

There is some difficulty about keeping these professional projects going here and elsewhere. They are not considered part of national defense and if anything is going to be cut, these projects are. The sponsors of the art project here have brought out a leaflet on the outside of which they simply put: "The strength of our nation lies in the skills of its citizens." I came away with a sense of tremendous urgency about preserving these projects in the interests of our future.

I found Mrs. Samuel Rosenman at the White House after a day spent attending a series of conferences on housing. She is doing a wonderful piece of work in New York city and I am always glad to have her come down here and contact the people who are working here. Mrs. Gifford Pinchot also came to see me. Finally I had to hurry to be ready for an early dinner, for Miss Dorothy Thompson and I had to be at Constitution Hall for the Town Hall meeting at a quarter before eight.

I really enjoyed the evening, for all I had to do was to preside. That meant introducing Miss Dorothy Thompson and reading the questions which were sent up for the panel and Miss Thompson to answer. Her address was interesting, but her handling of the questions was really inspiring. Even Congressman Mundt, of South Dakota, who, I think, had come prepared to uphold the opposition point of view, enjoyed it. In fact, I think everyone had a good time. The differences of opinion were friendly but fervent, and I hope served to clarify the points discussed.

Woman's Quiz

Q. Is it harmful to drink water in which there is sediment of iron?

A. No; because metallic iron is not absorbed by the body.

Q. How can plum puddings be kept in good condition?

A. The best way is to remove them from the container in which they are cooked as soon as they are cold and wrap them in oiled paper until you are ready to serve them. They can then be put back in the original container and reheated.

Q. How can an iodine stain be removed from an unwashable dress?

A. Sponge the spot with denatured alcohol.

Beloved Psalm Done in Cross Stitch

Psalm 23

The Lord is my shepherd; I shall not want. He maketh me to lie down in green pastures: He leadeth me beside the still waters. He restoreth my soul: He leadeth me in the paths of righteousness for his name's sake. Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil: for thou art with me; thy rod and thy staff they comfort me. Thou preparest a table before me in the presence of mine enemies: thou anointest my head with oil; my cup runneth over. Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life: and I will dwell in the house of the Lord for ever.

Soaps Harmonize With the Season

By Winifred Ware.

Soap can be merely a cleansing agent or it can be a luxury that transforms the bath from a chore to the lovely ritual it should be. Soap should be a delightfully refreshing bath accessory. After all, refreshing, fragrant cleanliness is the very foundation of beauty and the attainment of that cleanliness is more delightful when you have the aid of a fragrant, smoothly mild soap.

With the entrance of spring, why not change your bath soap? Soap, like other things, may harmonize with the spirit of the season, and it would be exhilarating and lend a charm to your bath if your soap reminded you of your favorite spring flower and boasted of the pretty pastel shades that are fashionable right this spring.

You may have a preference in soaps and may have discovered that some are harsh, while others tend to keep the skin smooth and baby-like. You may prefer soap that is odorless, or pleasantly scented.

As you may have guessed by now, the one we have selected for our springtime baths has a most delightful fragrance. In fact, this line of soaps comes in four odors and four shades and several prices. The maker of this line has been called "the originator of the vogue for luxury bathing" and she has created some of the finest flower fragrances.

The particular bath cake we like is carefully and expertly blended, lathers richly and leaves in its wake a delicate fragrance. A bath soap like this is a real pep-er-upper and actually leaves you in a nice frame of mind, because of the feeling of luxurious well-being that it promotes. Again, it dresses up your bathroom and is a soap you will be proud to have your guests notice.

Why not plan to change your soap with the season and give this one a trial. Call me at Walnut 6565 and I'll tell you the name and price and where you may buy it. If you live out of town, write to Winifred Ware at The Constitution, and inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Barbara Will Portray Five Stages of Age in New Film

By Sheila Graham.

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 23.—William Powell plays an entire sequence in "Love Crazy" wearing a top hat—and a bath towel. He is studying photographs of Dorothy Lamour in her sarong, so that his own drapery will be correct. . . . Both Richard Greene and David Niven have been asked to star in the "Saint" pictures, to be made in London. But the Army is not like a studio where you can borrow a player for the duration of a film, then send him back. . . . Paul Muni is reading Columbia's script, "Mr. Twilight," and if he likes it he will co-star with Jean Arthur.

Barbara Stanwyck's age in "Pioneer Woman" has been further reduced. She will now total a mere 100. She will have five different stages of growth to portray—as a girl of 16; then 26, next as a 33-year-old, then 75. And finally 100. Which is quite an assignment. It seems to be the fashion today for young actresses to play old ladies. If Barbara wants to do a good job of acting, she can study Martha Scott in "Cheers for Miss Bishop."

Most of the glamour girls in town are shying away from the role of Maria in "For Whom the Bell Tolls." The studio is insisting that whoever plays the part must crop her hair, as per the short tresses in the book. . . . Katharine Hepburn has informed the Hollywood producers who want her to sign a contract (and this includes C. B. De Mille for "Reap the Wild Wind") that a percentage of the picture's profit is a condition of acceptance. To date, this has stymied all deals. . . . What happened to the all-star British relief picture, "Let the Rafter Ring?"

It has been decided to give Errol Flynn some tougher screen meat to precede the comedy, "Ghosts Don't Leave Footprints." And he will first star in "Dive Bombers," directed by Michael Curtiz. . . . Talking about comedy, Olivia de Havilland, who prefers tragedy, reveals an unexpected flare for comedy in "Strawberry Blonde," and, in my opinion, completely outshines Rita Hayworth, who plays the more glamorous title role. This picture should please Ann Sheridan enormously, for the simple reason that Miss Hayworth, who replaced the rebellious Ann, is only a pale carbon copy of the "Oomph" girl. Hey! How about settling that fight, Ann and Warner?

Basil Rathbone asked for more money—and got it—for his villain role in "The Black Cat." Basil would rather play nice-man screen parts, which is why he raised his price for the current film. . . . Wayne Morris has been ordered to diet. His second chin photographs badly. . . . Charles Laughton has been persuaded to forget "Mr. Pinky," and his next for R. K. O., to follow "Almost an Angel," is "The Play's the Thing," by Ferenc Molnar. . . . Lillian Gish will soon sign a contract to play one of the crazy sisters in the movie version of "Ladies in Retirement." Other members of this Lester Cowan production include Ida Lupino, Louis Hayward and Judith Anderson—a perfect cast for the film.

Marlene Dietrich comes to roost in "Hard to Get" at Warners with George Raft and Humphrey Bogart. The studio is keeping the identity of the title player a secret. . . . James Cagney conducts an orchestra in his flicker "Hill Nocturne," to follow the "Bride Came C. O. D.," in which he is a pilot. . . . Nelson Eddy will have another picture try with Eleanor Powell in "Who's Who." Their last co-starring assignment, "Rosalia," was not exactly a success. . . . Both the son, Richard, and daughter, Katharine, of C. B. De Mille, have roles in papa's "Reap the Wild Wind."

"Lady in the Dark," for which Paramount paid $275,000, has Claudette Colbert in the Gertrude Lawrence role. . . . An agent friend of mine sold, many years ago, a story to Fox for Shirley Temple. The picture was never made, and the agent recently bought the story back and sold it as a May Roonster. Which will give you some idea of what can happen to a script.

Quick Chilblain Treatment Is Same Used for Frostbite

By Dr. William Brady.

Chilblain is first degree frostbite or freezing of the skin, comparable with first degree burn or sunburn, that is, reddening and irritation without blistering or actual destruction of the skin.

In some cases blisters may occur, but generally chilblain develops only to the stage of reddening, irritation, which is characterized by numbness and tingling at first, then itching and burning or pain. Individuals who get insufficient calcium or insufficient sunshine vitamin D (which is essential for the assimilation and utilization of calcium) are more likely to suffer attacks of chilblain than are individuals whose nutrition is normal.

Chilblain, or frostbite, by the way, is the only human ail that is caused by exposure to cold, more particularly or more frequently to cold and dampness or wet. Greatly deluded lubricators abound in the medical profession, to say nothing of the accidental "health authorities" who grind out tales of advice on how the public may avoid whatever ills the public imagines exposure to cold and wet can cause.

Absurd as the ideas of these old timers are in reference to "catching cold" they are almost plausible as compared with a notion still seriously entertained by some doctors in reference to the treatment of frostbite, namely that ice, snow or cold water should be applied to the frozen part in the emergency or first aid treatment.

The best emergency treatment for chilblains is the same as the treatment of frostbite. This is the treatment which has proved most effective in the experience of competent authorities who have had real experience. Vilhjalmur Stefansson, who lived for years in the Arctic, advises gentle, very gentle rubbing or rather kneading with the warm dry palm, and nothing more. If necessary, warm the palm by holding the hand for a while on the skin of the chest under the clothing.

It is important not to overdo the treatment and not to rub the frozen part vigorously. Just apply the warm palm, or if the nose or the ear is frostbitten use the warm fingers, first one hand, then the other, warming up the hands alternately, and knead or roll the frostbitten part very gently, avoiding friction of the skin, and stop the treatment the instant the blanching or white appearance of the frozen part is succeeded by the pink flush of returning circulation. Meanwhile there is no better internal remedy in any degree of frostbite or freezing, than hot coffee or hot soup of some kind or both. Apply artificial warmth to the extremities and keep the patient in a comfortable room, not in a cold place as the old-timers, long on theory but short on experience, imagined necessary.

Exiled German Prince Feted At Party for Altar Society

♦♦♦ IT IS NOT OFTEN, even in these upside-down days, when European nobility—even royalty—is more welcome anywhere than in its own country, that an Atlanta hostess is able to corral a real prince for her tea party. But Carrie Lou (Mrs. Stephens) Mitchell did just that.

As newly elected president of the Ladies' Altar Society of Sacred Heart church, she entertained in honor of the executive board, inviting the members of the society. It happened that just at that time the distinguished scholar, Hubertus Prince zu Loewenstein, arrived in Atlanta for a series of lectures under the Carnegie Foundation at Emory University and Agnes Scott.

Mrs. Mitchell, meeting him, invited him to come with her husband to meet the ladies, and he gracefully submitted to being lionized. Indeed, the women, many of whom had been in their study clubs modestly groping into the same subject he was to treat in his lectures, "Foundations of Christian Democracy," found the expert most gracious in exchanging points of view with the amateurs.

The prince, whose politics and leadership in Catholic youth activities, exiled him from Germany early in the Hitler regime, represents on both sides two of the oldest noble houses in his country. That was why, when he told of the house in New Jersey which is home now for himself, his wife, and his children, betrayed a slight amusement when he said that the place in New Jersey dated from the 18th century. "Two hundred years. Quite old—in America?"

♦♦♦ HANDSOME SILVER is foremost among the many lovely gifts received by Martha de Golan and her fiancé, Ben Munson III, of Dennison, Texas, whose marriage will be a social event of tomorrow. Ben's mother, Mrs. W. B. Munson Jr., has given them an antique silver tea service which will be a handsome addition to the furnishings in their future home in Dennison. Martha's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Felix de Golan, have given the couple their flat silver in the Hannah Hill pattern.

There is an interesting story behind this silver pattern which is plain in design and was used in England in 1620. Martha and Ben are going to carry out the custom of those early days and use both initials on the back of each piece in the following style, "M. and B. M."

♦♦♦ FEAR THAT perhaps many of his friends here think he has failed to write them, has caused Ernest S. Howlett, of Norwich, England, to add an SOS to his last letter to his friends, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Martin, at Tate Mountain Estates. Because of the war many of his letters have evidently failed to reach America. In fact, the charming Englishman, who made many friends here during a recent visit, wrote Mrs. Martin that he is aware that many of his letters are on the bottom of the Atlantic. He also adds that "tea rationing is so meager that tea is hardly tea at all, and you know how we feel about our tea."

♦♦♦ THROUGH the efforts of Spring Street P-T. A., the school auditorium will soon be enhanced by a handsome new curtain. The energetic P-T. A. members are sponsoring a bridge party from 3 to 5 o'clock on Tuesday at Davidson's, you know, to raise the funds for the much needed curtain.

Already more than 350 tickets have been sold for the affair and it's small wonder, for included in the enticing list of prizes are $40 gift certificates from local department stores, hams, coffee-makers and pocketbooks.

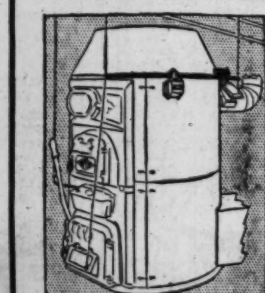

The party is being capably handled by Mrs. Leroy Bates, chairman; Mrs. Henry Powell, co-chairman; Mrs. George Lowman Jr., prizes; Mrs. Julian Still, table prizes and prizes; Mrs. John A. White, co-chairman with Mrs. Still.

The nuptial ceremony was brilliantly solemnized at the First Baptist church of LaGrange, and was followed by a wedding reception at which Mr. and Mrs. Callaway were hosts at their home, Blue Springs Farm, at Hamilton, Ga. Mrs. B. H. Martin Jr. was the matron of honor and only attendant for the bride. She wore a dusty rose model fashioned with bracelet sleeves and a flared skirt, and her flowers were talliesman roses.

Mr. Binkley and his bride left for a wedding trip to the north Georgia mountains and the Carolinas and upon their return will reside at 1341 Memorial drive.

Mrs. T. D. Binkley, mother of the groom, chose for the wedding a powder blue dress with a shoulder spray of Briarcliff roses.

Esme Becomes Calm and Agrees Vivian Was Playing a Practical Joke on Her

SYNOPSIS.

Jean Selden is in love with Brandon Sayre, an explorer, but is dazed by Vivian Forrest's ardent love-making and wealth and marries him. Vivian is impatient, makes no secret of his various love affairs and after two years Jean detests him but she must consider her baby. Vivian is a member of a house party at palatial Forrest Fell on Long Island and Jean knows her love for Brandon is not dead. Other guests are Peter Haskell, Anne Foster and Suzy Kirk and all, including Vivian's half brother, Austin, are practicing for a fencing tournament to be held there. Then Vivian brings as a guest Esmeralda Fane, a pretty movie actress, insisting that Esmeralda's choice nursery room be turned over to her. Vivian has a daily 15-minute fencing period with Jean who also is an expert. Jean leaves at once one night after they fence. His guests notice that he totters; then he drops dead. Dr. Gregg, the family physician, says morphine caused death, though he notes a small foil wound on the neck. All the guests, then Jean and Austin are questioned by Medical Examiner Peterson, District Attorney Mitchell, Police Inspector Eastman who do not know that Vivian had told Jean that Esmeralda was to be a permanent member of the household. After Vivian's funeral, Robert W. Campbell, a lawyer, calls on the family and guests to Vivian's study. He reads a letter Vivian had left with him, saying he hid his last will in that room. Esmeralda says she holds a promissory note, signed by Vivian, for $100,000. Now go on with the story:

INSTALLMENT XXIII.

"You did it!" she ranted. "You are a thief and a liar! You knew where my paper was, you got my note and left a blank paper! Where is the note? Find it for me or you'll be sorry! Don't think I don't know how to revenge myself! I have friends, rich and influential men, who will have you put in jail for this!"

There was no possibility of anyone else being heard during this tirade, but when the angry voice at last stopped, from sheer exhaustion, Eastman spoke.

"Another exhibition like that, Miss Fane, and you will find yourself under arrest. Will you sit quietly and speak quietly, or shall I call a policeman to arrest you?"

"You haven't done such a thing with my baboon-faced nuns! What could you arrest me for?"

"For disturbing the peace and for making false accusations against Mr. Campbell, in addition to viciously attacking him."

Eastman had risen and crossed the room, and was now picking up the telephone.

"Drop that!" she screamed. "Yes, I'll sit quiet, damned quiet, while you tell me what you're going to do about this low-down trick you've played on me. Hell! Look at my face!" She had taken out a vanity case, and was looking at herself in the mirror. Her tantrum had brought about a sad disturbance in her make-up, and her angry tears had caused muddy ripples of mascara down her rouged cheeks.

And so absorbed was she in re-organizing the work of art that she seemed to forget the presence of the others until it was finished.

Then presenting her really lovely face again, she said, in a caustic tone, "Now, if you have an explanation to offer, I shall be glad to hear it. But it must be a good one."

"I have no explanation, Miss Fane," Campbell said, sternly. "I am in no way responsible for your property. I have no personal interest in you or your affairs, and I have no reason to detain you here."

"I suppose that is a dismissal, but I am not going until I know more about this thing. How could it happen, Mr. Eastman? Perhaps you can tell me."

"Whatever happened, Miss Fane, is between you and Vivian Forrest. No person could have access to your safe deposit box. The paper taken from it today is the same paper that you put in it when you rented the box."

"But that paper had writing on it, this paper has none. Can you explain that?"

"I can think of an explanation, though it seems to me an unlikely one. There is, you know, a sort of ink that disappears after a time, and leaves the paper blank."

"Oh, I know; they call it sympathetic ink."

"Not quite that kind. Sympathetic ink can be made visible by the use of some application. But there is a disappearing ink, which fades away and cannot be brought back at all."

"The best! The skunk! Do you mean Vivian Forrest put such a trick on me? On ME!"

"I do not say so. I say only that such might be the case."

"I think," Campbell said, "that is the explanation. Forrest was fond of practical jokes and he did this to get a rise out of Miss Fane. He doubtless meant to go with you some day to get it from your box, and then laugh to see your amazement. At any rate, you can keep the paper, and if writing should appear on it, we can take this matter up again. I have an appointment now. I shall be at Forrest Fell again in a few days. And unless the hidden will turns up, I shall proceed with the will I have here."

Campbell remained at his office and Esmeralda went with Eastman back to Forrest Fell in the car. She had dropped all her belongings; now she was a sad and injured young woman.

"I see now," Esme said, quietly, to the inspector. "It must have been what Vivian considered a joke. He loved to get a rise out of me, and I'm sure, when he had finished with his trick and let me discover that the promissory note I thought I had was only a blank paper, he would have made it up to me in some other way. He was like that. He'd do something to make me furious, and then he would love me to death and give me a beautiful present, and we'd be happier than ever."

"You've known him a long time?"

"About six months. But he hadn't been friends more than a month when he put me in the loveliest rooms you ever saw."

"The ones we were in today?"

"Oh, my, no. He moved me into those a month ago, and I raised such particular hell, he invited me to Forrest Fell to make up."

"His affection was on the wane, then?"

"Oh, he was always off and on, but this time he planned to keep me in his house—and Jean, too. You know—that French thing, I can't say it right."

"A menage a trois."

"Yes. What does it mean exactly?"

"We have no English word for it, but it simply means that a man has his wife and his mistress living in his house. It is not unknown in France but is seldom found in this country."

"No; American wives wouldn't stand for it. Vivian said he would make Jean agree to it, because of the baby. He could persuade her to do anything if he threatened to take the baby away from her."

"He couldn't do that!"

"Vivian Forrest could do anything he wanted to. He'd find a way, or make it. You'd be surprised to know some of the things he did."

"I've no wish to know, thank you. I think that trick he played on you was abominable. You acted outrageously, accusing Mr. Campbell of trickery, but knowing you as I do now, I am not greatly surprised at that. Nor do I blame you overmuch. It was an awful blow, and you were beside yourself with rage."

"I was, but really, Mr. Eastman, I held on to myself. Vivian often told me I must never use swear words in good society, and I do try not to. If I had let myself go, you'd have heard something."

"I say, inspector, what do you think they'll do about Vivian's will? There's no will hidden in the study! That's one of his practical jokes."

"Oh, I can't think so. You see, he was always on hand to laugh at his victims, but he knew he wouldn't be here at the reading of his own will, so I don't believe he meant a hoax."

"Yes, he did. You'll never find a will. And that means, Mr. Campbell says, that he'll make the old one do. And, inspector, the great heaven-blue eyes looked into his, 'that will was drawn before Vivian knew me at all!'"

Eastman was impressionable. He was truly sorry for this lovely child, even though he well knew that she was no child, was only surface lovely. But it was a mean trick to play on her, and so far as he could see there was no redress.

"Perhaps, when the estate is settled, the heirs will give you a sum of money to make up for Vivian's cruel joke."

"Perhaps the sun will rise in the west. But I'll make up to Austin, and if Jean doesn't spike my guns, I might make good. Thanks for the tip."

Purpose of the Draft Physical Examination

By Capt. Gene Morgan.

"What is the purpose of the draft physical examination and what is expected of acceptable men?"

The regulations of the selective service act explains the reason for the physical examinations as follows:

"...to procure men who are physically fit for the rigors of general service. The registrant must be able to see well, have comparatively good hearing, have a heart able to withstand the stress of physical exertion, be intelligent enough to understand and execute military maneuvers, obey commands and protect himself and be able to transport himself by walking, as the exigencies of military life may demand."

"I have false teeth, two removable plates. How would I be classified in the draft?"

Army physicians immediately place any registrant with removable plates in his mouth in Class 4-F as physically unfit for Army service. The selective service law
